ADMIRALTY HOUSE

---

Welcome to Admiralty House, home of hospitality.

Located in a stunning position on Darwin's Esplanade, this tropical oasis houses the award winning venues Char Restaurant & The Darwin Club.

Florenz August Carl Bleeser, a postal official and botanist of increasing renown, bought this block and an adjoining one in 1931. He erected his home on this one and established a small museum on the adjacent one, including designing and planting a garden with unusual trees, palms and orchids in a shade house.

Bleeser died during World War II and the family did not return to Darwin. His garden existed when Old Admiralty House was moved to this site in 1951. The design, shade house and some of the original trees in the garden remain today. The house continued as the home of the most senior naval officer in the north until 1983. It suffered minor damage during Cyclone Tracy and was later used as a field operations base to assist with recovery efforts after Tracy had passed.

The house is a good example of an amended Burnett "B" type tropical house, the grandest of a series of tropical designs by BCG Burnett. It is one of only two "B" type houses remaining in the Central Business District of Darwin.

Having survived World War 2 & Cyclone Tracey, Admiralty House is a survivor and embodies all that is the people and spirit of the Northern Territory. Char Restaurant and The Darwin Club hope to reflect this within our food and drinks for you our treasured guest.

Our Beverage list is extensive, with all wines matching our distinctive cuisine and cocktails showcasing the many personalities of Darwin.

After all, it comes with the Territory.

THE SKIPPER'S FACT

Whisky is from Scotland and whiskey is from Ireland. The difference comes from the translation of words from the Scottish and Irish Gaelic forms. The American spelling is whiskey most likely due to the large number of Irish immigrants setting up their stills throughout the US. The Japanese spelling is whisky as it was two men's study of Scotch whisky that inspired the Japanese whisky movement. Although the legal spelling is whisky, whiskey is generally preferred.

THE SKIPPER'S FACT

Vodka originates from Russia and Poland. Most of them are traditionally distilled from cereals (rye, wheat) and potatoes.

Some, such as Ciroc, are produced from grapes which gives them a sweet taste.
