WE LEARN THIS BECAUSE: These exam board topics allow us to span both medieval and modern history. We look at the reign of ‘Bad king John’ and why the barons introduced Magna Carta. In the USA we look at the changing United States from the 1920s to the 1975, including groups in society and foreign policy through events like the Great Depression, WWII and the ‘Age of Affluence’. The coursework unit has a short taught unit and then gives students the opportunity to explore an area of interest using sources.
