The US Chamber of Commerce stated it best when describing 5 reasons to join your local Chamber.

Benefits of joining a local Chamber.

1. Make better business contacts: When you decide to join a local chamber, you automatically open yourself — and your business — to a network of potential partnerships. Business contacts from your local chamber could become the supportive community you turn to one day for assistance or vice versa. In addition, your new business contacts may be the people who serve as your sounding board for new ideas, come up with solutions to internal business problems, and even partner with you on a new endeavor.
2. Increase your credibility: Belonging to a chamber gives your business a leg up compared to those who are not members. A company with this level of credibility becomes desirable to consumers, increasing the likeliness they'll seek out your goods or services in the future. Compare belonging to a chamber as you would having a college degree when applying for a job; it tells your future employer — or consumer — you know what you are doing. While your business's positive perception increases, so will your profits as you establish credibility and brand recognition within your industry. Your membership dues could potentially pay for themselves thanks to the influx of your consumer base.
3. Expand your network: As your local chamber continues to grow, so will your network. The chamber holds networking opportunities that allow you to get to know community members, fellow business owners, and other professionals in your industry. While the events can range from formal to fun, each will allow you to make new connections and foster additional exposure for your business. Your business's relationships and possible expansion through a local chamber network will often be unmatched.
4. Key Business Resources: Your local chamber can make a great marketing resource for your company via avenues like its newsletter, website, social media, and more. In addition to networking events, chambers often hold events, such as "Lunch and Learn," where members can pick up new skills or techniques. These types of events can offer resources for advancement for all your employees.
5. Professional development: Most chambers of commerce host events and training sessions geared toward professional development. By providing these opportunities for you and your business's growth, the chamber creates an avenue for you to improve your skills and gain knowledge without breaking your company's budget. Taking advantage of the chamber's professional development opportunities will help your business make necessary changes, share its expertise with others, and grow.
