- Race Against Time

- Onomatopoeia

- Text sizes

Part 1 - genre and features

Graphic Novels Read

•Genre:

ADVENTURE

•Chosen books:

- Dog Man and Cat Kid #4
- Bone: Out of Bonneville

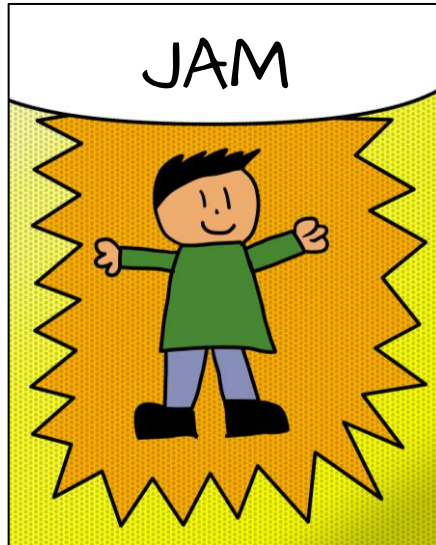

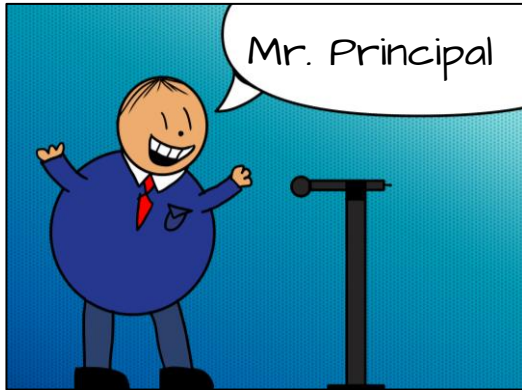

•Reason:

The reason that chosen these two are because of its simplistic understanding, unique styles, low age rating and suitability to the genre.

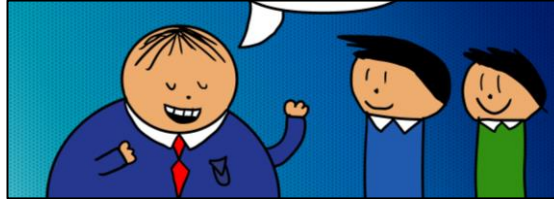

Summary of my Graphic Novel

- Setting:
- Orlando, Florida & Nepal, Mount Everything
- Characters:

Summary of my Graphic Novel

- Plot:
- Jim and Jam two best friends create a machine
- However some flaws occur which lead it to creating a vacuum and sucking Jam into it
- Jim then, goes on an adventure to save Jam

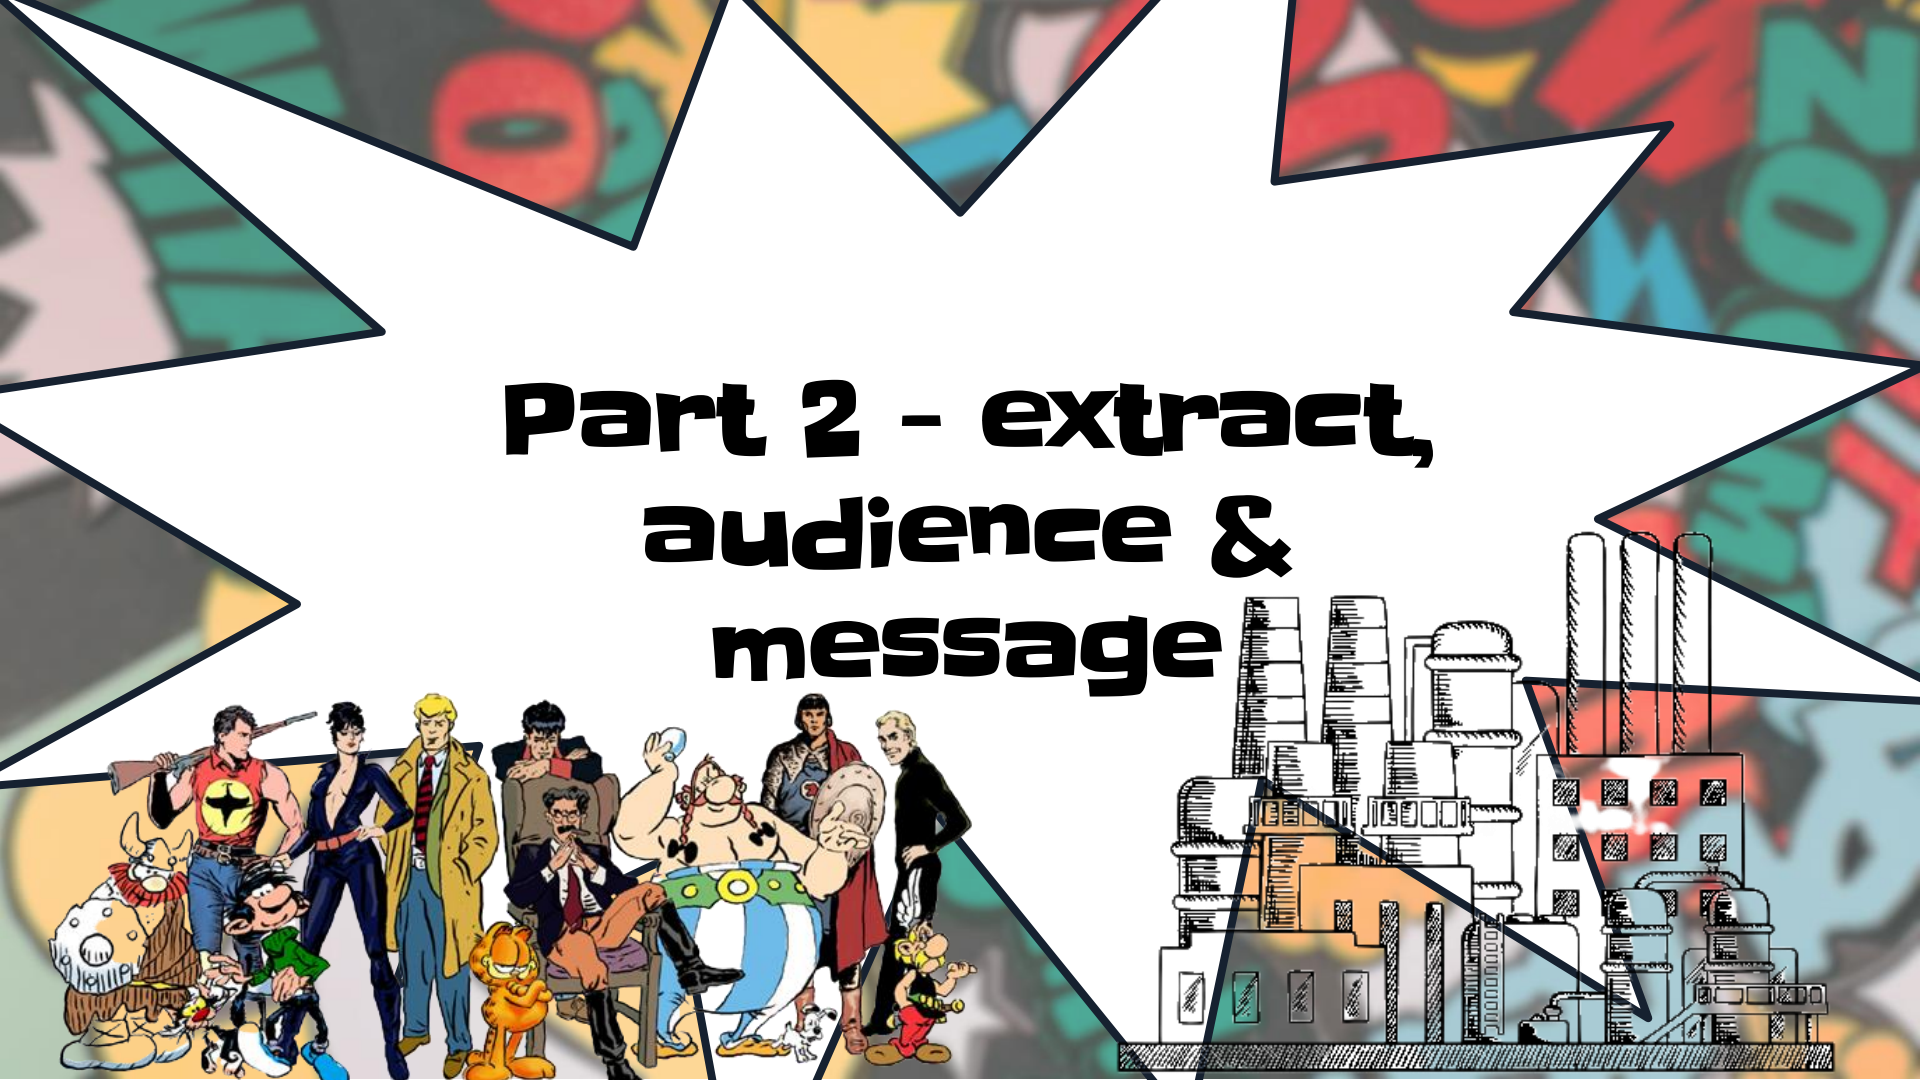

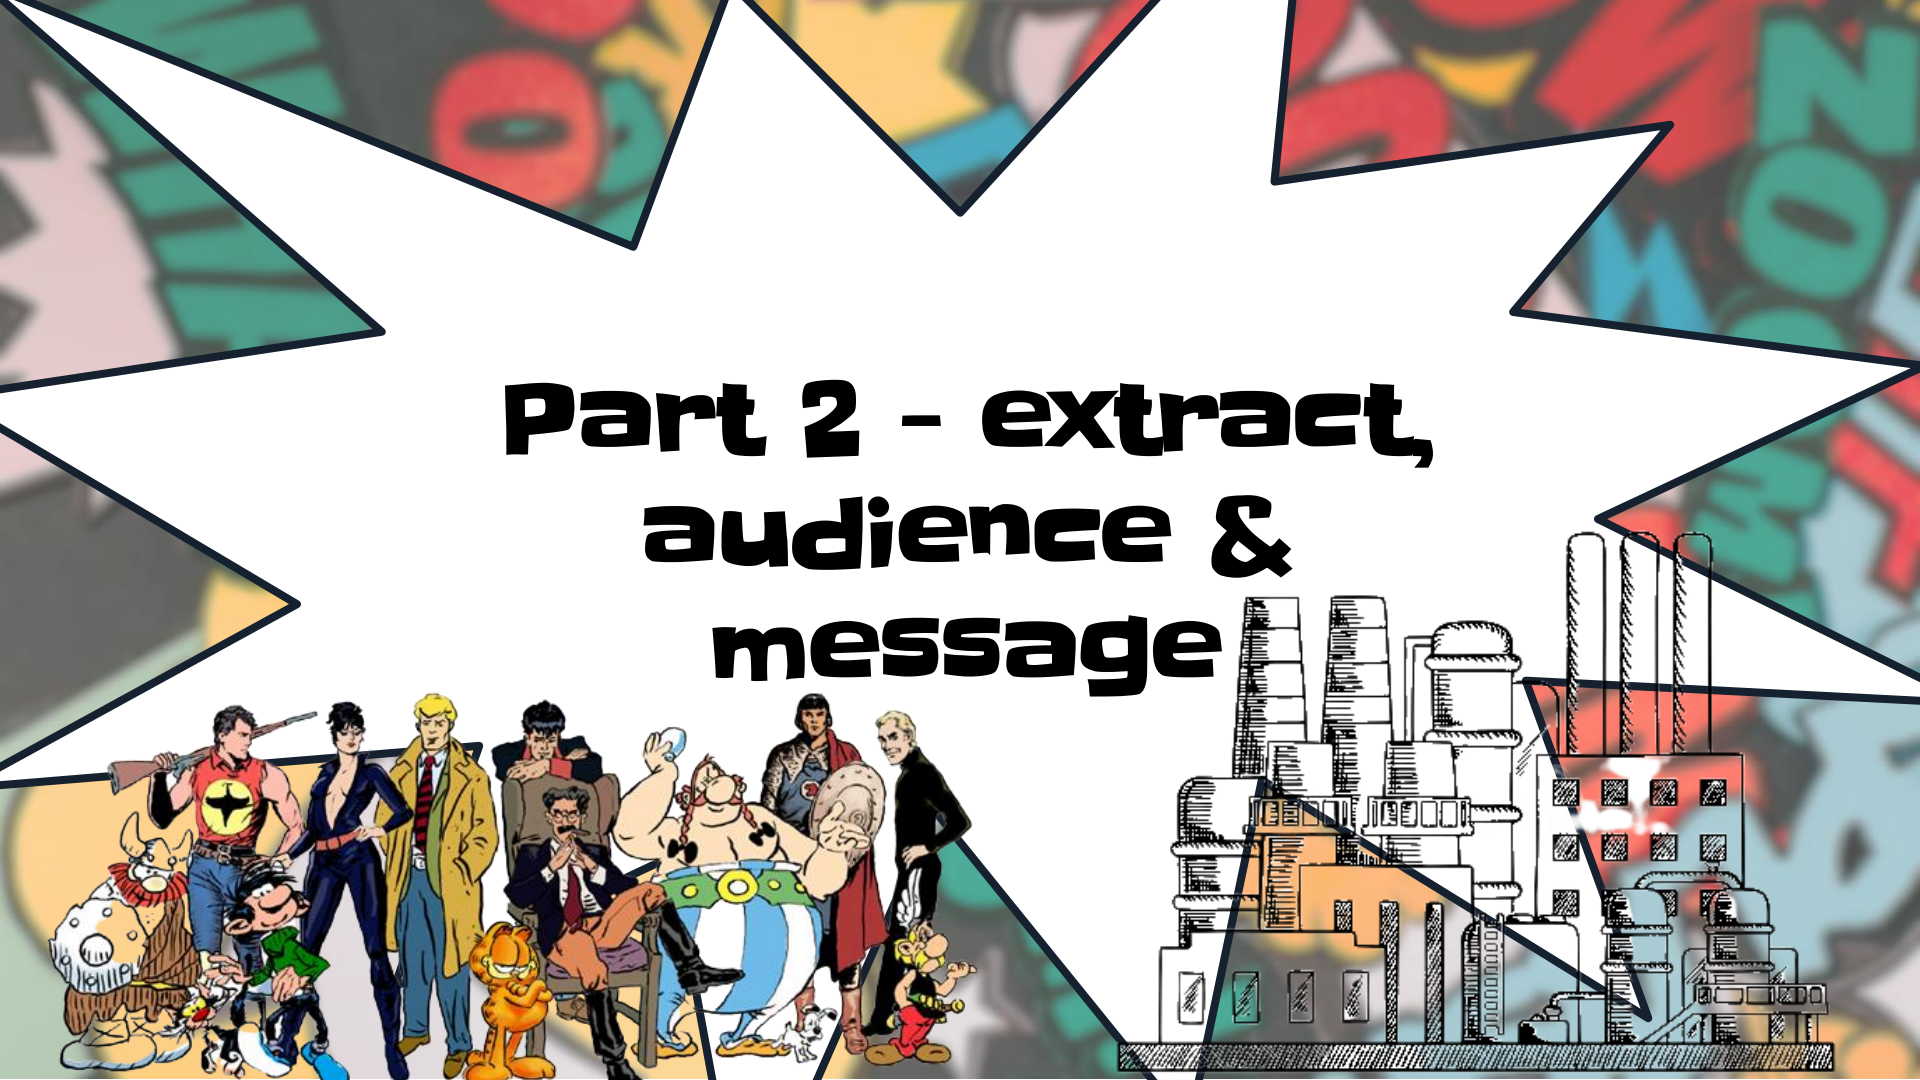

Relationships Between Books

- From the adventure books that I have read plus my own creation, there are many connections in terms of style, art, language, content and context.

Part 2 - extract, audience & message

Specific Extract

The page extract that I have chosen is the last page of my comic as I think it represents my genre the best.

It has features of the adventure genre such as:

- A race against time
- Small movement between panels
- Onomatopoeia
- Different Text Sizes

Connection To Genre

- A race against time

- Small movement between panels

- Onomatopoeia

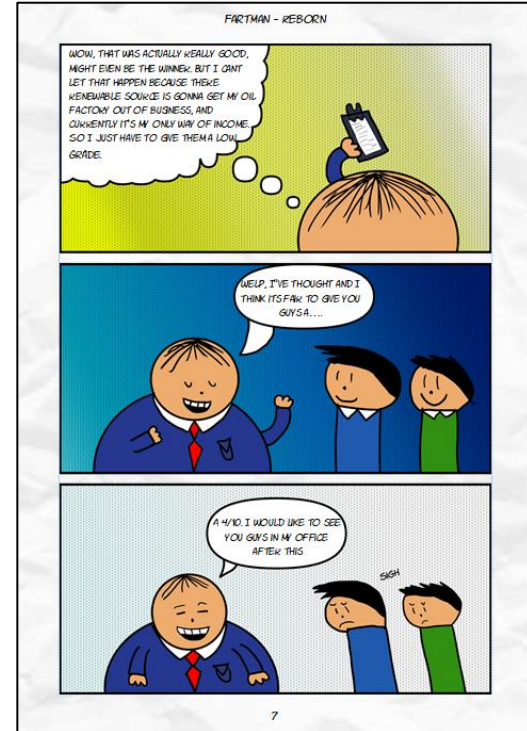

- Different Text Sizes

Explanation Of Message

- Message
- I had two main focus topics:
 - Nothing can get between it
- Value of Friendship
 - Nothing can get between it
- Impact of Carbon emissions
 - How it should be stopped and reused
 - Green energy is better for the environment

Conclusion

- Books that I read were Dog Man #4 and Bone #1
- What I learned from these two books are that Adventure books are fun, and light hearted with simple art style used in a unique way.
- My graphic novel is a good example of the adventure genre
