Sustainable Writing Instruments

Where sustainability meets sophistication – pens for the eco-conscious brand

Sustainable writing instruments, crafted from recycled aluminium, plastics, paper, bamboo, wheatstraw, or FSC®-certified wood, reduce environmental impact while maintaining quality. Companies choose these eco-conscious options to align with sustainability goals and appeal to increasingly environmentally aware customers through responsible promotional merchandise.

Sustainable writing instruments minimise waste, use responsibly sourced materials, and support greener manufacturing, helping reduce the environmental impact of everyday products.

FSC-certified writing instruments use materials from responsibly managed forests, protecting biodiversity, supporting reforestation, and promoting ethical practices.

Reducing virgin materials conserves energy, limits resource extraction, and cuts emissions—supporting climate goals and encouraging responsible manufacturing.

Mechanical Pencils

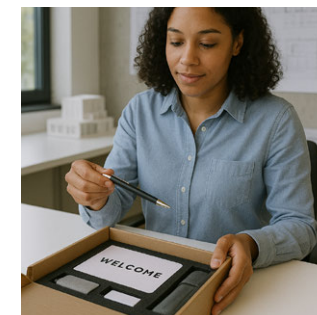

Precision Mechanical Pencils for Everyday Writing, Sketching, and Technical Work

Mechanical pencils are defined by their refillable lead system, consistent line precision, and ergonomic design. Crafted with durable materials and sleek finishes, they eliminate sharpening, reduce mess, and offer long-lasting performance—perfect for technical drawings, creative sketching, educational use, or professional note-taking.

Mechanical pencils occupy a small but distinct niche in promotional merchandising — not a bulk giveaway like plastic pens, but a more specialist and perceived value option.

Higher perceived value than standard pencils due to longevity with refillable leads, sturdier construction, and a more durable, professional-looking body.

Seen as more executive, making them a good choice for branding aimed at skilled trades, creative industries, design professionals, or high-end corporate giveaways.

Glossary

The terminology used in graphics can be bewildering to the casual user and the following will hopefully demystify the more frequently used industry terms.

Bitmap

This casually refers to an image similar to Raster images but unlike raster images it can have it's own file format represented as .bmp.

CMYK

This refers to the subtractive colour process based on Cyan, Magenta, Yellow and Black. It is also a term that is casually used to describe the printing process that produces a 'four colour' or 'process' photographic image. CMYK are consequently referred to as the four 'process' colours. Typically, a CMYK image should not be lower than 300 dots per inch (dpi)

Definition - High

Optically, this means that the edges of a line, a dot or a pixel is sharp. However, casually it also refers to pixel density because high pixel or dot density can produce high definition.

Definition - Low

Optically, this means that the edges of a line, a dot or a pixel is not sharp. However, casually it also refers to pixel density because low pixel or dot density can produce low definition.

Four Colour Process

See CMYK.

Image Definition

Optically, this refers to the edge quality of a line, a pixel, or a dot. However, it is also casually used to describe the quality of an image based on its resolution. eg. a line may have a dense array of pixels which makes it high resolution, but if the edges of that line are blurred it will be described as having low definition.

Image Resolution

This refers to the amount of pixels or dots in a given area (usually per square inch) of a raster or bitmap image. The higher the concentration, the higher the resolution and the more it can be magnified before the pattern of dots can be resolved by the human eye. Resolution is not used as a term when referring to vector images.

Font

Also referred to as 'typeface', this refers to particular styles of letters, numbers and symbols.

Paths

Not all images are pixel based; some are defined by paths. This system uses algorithms that define the colour and shape of an outline and also the colour that fills the area confined by the outline. The benefit of vector images are that they can be magnified infinitely without losing edge definition.

Pixel

This is an abbreviation of 'Picture Element' - It is represented as a dot of a colour, and when combined with other dots can form a complete picture on a display device such as a computer monitor. A standard monitor will display 72 pixels per inch. However, if the image is output to a printer it must be converted to a minimum of 300 dots per inch (dpi).

RGB

This refers to a digital image as seen on a monitor or a scanner in which the additive primary colours Red, Green and Blue light are combined together in various ways to reproduce a broad array of colours.

Raster

This refers to images composed of dots or pixels. It can be a dot of a single colour or dots that represent a full photographic image.

Typeface

Also referred to as 'font', this refers to a particular style of letter, number or symbol.

Vector

This refers to an image that is composed of paths.

Printing on Coloured Products

The substrate colour will nearly always influence the shade or hue of a printed image. Therefore, accurate colour matches cannot normally be achieved when printing on colour substrates. If you are in doubt please order a printed sample first.

Your purchase order must contain all relevant information to enable an Order Acknowledgement to be raised successfully and in a timely manner. For line or spot colour prints the files must be supplied as vector artwork such as Adobe Illustrator files (EPS) and all elements, including fonts saved as outlines. For raster images, files should be provided as TIFF, PSD or high resolution Jpegs at least 300dpi but preferably 600dpi. Please note, the products available on this express service may vary from time to time and surcharges may also apply.

Maximum order sizes apply to each item.

Your order will be despatched by us on your behalf using a third-party overnight service. We cannot be held responsible for late deliveries due to third party carriers once the goods have left our premises. Overnight delivery service is only possible to UK mainland addresses and does not include the highlands or islands of the U.K. Completed purchase order and artwork to be received before a cut of time scale, please ensure that you contact sales to confirm this. This will be the working day prior to your required despatch date.

Your purchase order must contain all relevant information to enable us to produce your order correctly and despatch it to your chosen address

The Maximum order size is 5,000 units with the same print, one colour, one position or full colour to one position. Barrel printing only, clip printing is not available on this service. This order size is subject to change.

A paper proof and order acknowledgement will be provided by e-mail and this must be signed off. The signed artwork approval and order acknowledgement must be returned back to us by e-mail within one hour.

Please note we are happy to provide a mock-up of the artwork, prior to receiving the order.

Branding Methods Explained

Pad Printing

Pad printing is a versatile printing technique that uses a silicone rubber pad to transfer an image from an etched plate onto the product surface. It is ideal for printing on flat items, cylindrical objects, and even complex or irregular shapes, making it a popular choice for promotional merchandise. Pad printing is used for high-quality, detailed decoration on a wide range of products. While not suitable for very large print areas, the process allows for up to five colours, offering excellent flexibility and precision across various materials and surfaces.

Laser Engraving - Fiber

Fibre laser engraving is a precise and durable marking method used primarily on metal products. It works by directing a concentrated laser beam onto the surface, removing the top layer to reveal the base material beneath. This results in a permanent, high-contrast mark without the use of inks or chemicals. Fibre lasers can engrave both flat and cylindrical items, making them ideal for pens and other metal accessories. The engraving reflects the natural colour of the underlying material, offering a sleek, premium finish that is resistant to wear, making it perfect for long-lasting branding.

Direct Digital Printing

Direct digital printing is a modern technique where digital ink is fired directly from print heads onto the product surface. This method enables full-colour, photographic-quality images and is ideal for detailed, vibrant designs. It can be used on a wide variety of promotional products including pens, pencils, highlighters, and markers. Direct digital printing is especially effective for partial wraps on cylindrical pens, typically covering up to 70% of the pen's diameter. This process is well suited to short runs and multi-colour designs, offering excellent flexibility and fast turnaround without the need for printing plates or screens.

Screenprinting

Screenprinting is a traditional and reliable printing method ideal for flat surfaces and cylindrical items such as pens. The process involves pushing ink through a fine mesh screen onto the product, using a stencil to define the design. It is not suitable for compound or irregular shapes but works well on a wide range of materials. Screenprinting is only suitable for spot colours, with Pantone matching usually achievable. Depending on the product, one to four colours can be printed. This technique delivers bold, consistent results and is well suited to high-volume production.

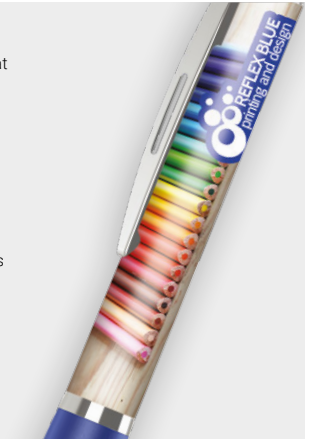

Laser Engraving - CO₂

CO₂ laser engraving is a versatile marking method suitable for wood, certain plastics, and paint-finished metals. It uses a high-powered laser to vaporise the surface layer, producing a precise and permanent mark. This process is ideal for detailed engraving and gives a natural, tactile finish. It can be used on flat items and cylindrical products, such as pens, with partial wrap engraving possible up to 70% of the pen's diameter. CO₂ laser engraving is also the preferred method for achieving a mirror-finish effect on metal pens, offering a clean, high-contrast result without the use of inks or chemicals.

Transfer Wraps

Transfer wrap printing is a process that produces full-colour, photographic-quality images, which are wrapped entirely around the product. It is particularly well suited to pens and pencils, allowing for complete 360° coverage. The design is first printed onto a special transfer material and then heat-applied to the item, bonding the image securely to the surface. This method is ideal for use on painted wood, white painted metal, and white plastic, where it delivers vibrant, detailed results. Transfer wraps are perfect for bold, eye-catching designs that require full wrap coverage and a seamless visual finish.

UltraHD

Redefining Print

Ultra HD is a high-resolution transfer printing process that delivers full-colour, photographic-quality images onto pens and pencils. Like full Transfer Wrap Printing, it uses heat-applied transfers, but instead of wrapping completely around the product, Ultra HD covers only part of the surface—offering a more cost-effective solution for detailed branding. This process is ideal for cylindrical pens and pencils, allowing for vibrant, eye-catching designs on a smaller print area. Ultra HD retains the visual impact of full-colour printing while providing flexibility for budgets and is suitable for white painted wood, white painted metal, and white plastic surfaces.

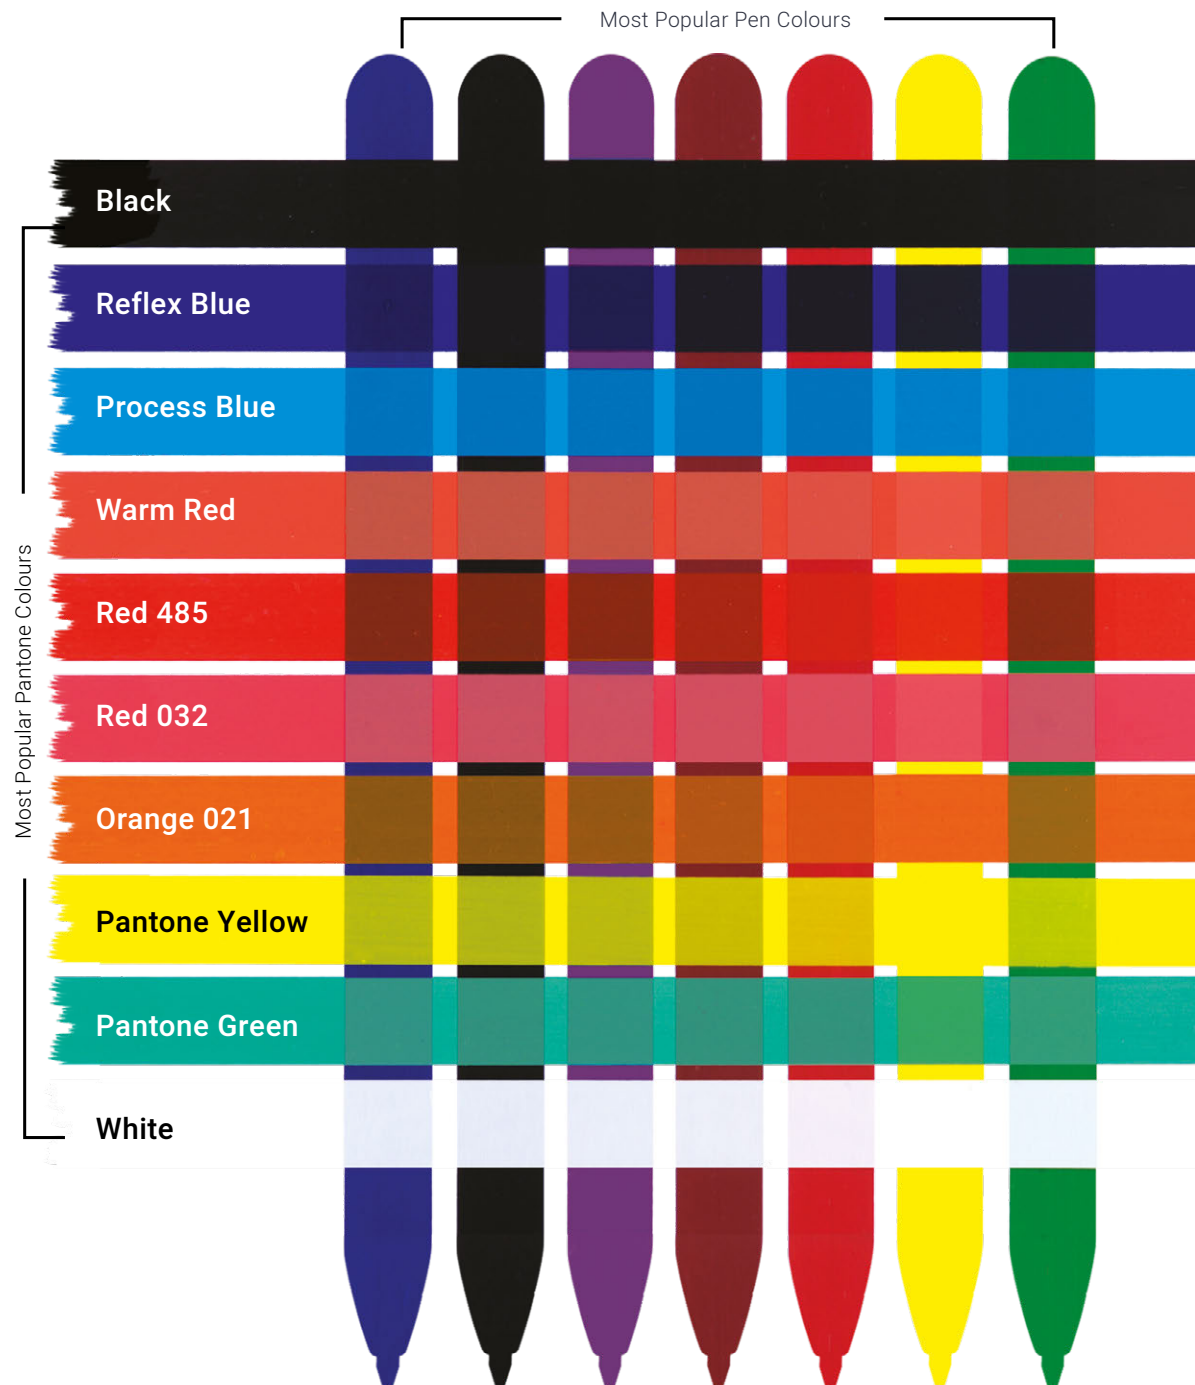

Colour Matching on Non-White Materials

The most accurate colour matches can be achieved when Pantone references are provided and the surface being printed is white. In the absence of Pantone references, a colour swatch or previously printed sample is acceptable but colour matches are less accurate in this case. It is not possible to produce accurate colour matches on any surface that is not white. Surface colour always influences the printed colour (see adjacent image) and it is advisable to order a printed proof if the colour match is critical. If a printed proof is not ordered, we will assume that our best attempt to match the colour reference requested is acceptable to you, given the constraints or limitations of the ink system in use and the nature and colour of the surface being printed. As a general rule, orders for bright colours to be printed onto dark surfaces will be the least accurate, eg. white printed onto black will appear light grey when compared with true white and all basic Pantone colours and all central Pantone colours will appear very dull when printed onto black or coloured surfaces.

The adjacent image shows how a number of perfectly matched Pantone colours appear when printed on coloured pens. This image is a simulation of the effect but it is derived from a precision colour scan of real screen prints on real pens. Every attempt has been made to preserve the authenticity of colour balance through each of the stages of reproduction to ensure that the finished scan reflects the true nature of how Pantone colours appear on different coloured substrates. The final stage, the printing of this page, was produced using conventional litho CMYK separations and this system, whilst not ideal, is the only feasible method for reproducing such a wide variety of colour effects. Therefore the colours achieved should not be taken as precisely correct but they are very close to the original screen printed swatch and, as such, can be safely used as a guide.

Clearly, having to print Pantone colours on anything other than white is less than ideal. In reality, we usually modify colour matches to increase their opacity when overprinting non-white materials but this will always result in straying from the original Pantone reference. The resultant image may appear better than if an unmodified ink was used but it will never be an accurate Pantone match. In all cases, the colour will lose its clarity (brightness) by making it more opaque.

Metallic inks (gold and silver) have a reduced life due to their formulation. No guarantee for adhesion, chemical resistance (including perspiration) or abrasion resistance can be given on these colours. Some products can be over-varnished (at additional cost) to protect metallic colours and this should be requested in writing at the time of placing the order.

Get inspired.
