

Jane Medio

BIO

Jane Medio is an artist and public-school teacher in South Jersey, with a passion for working in a wide variety of media. Jane's work centers around nature, realism, and family. She prefers to depict people or animal subjects "in their element", appearing most relaxed and engaged. Motherhood has also influenced Jane's work significantly as she explores the relationship between family autonomy and the balance of whose needs are more important at any given time.

Jane loves learning new techniques and art-making processes. One of her favorite explorations has been fiber art. For more than 10 years, Jane has created landscapes, portraits, and three dimensional work using natural wool. By repeatedly stabbing the wool with a barbed tool, or by using friction and warm water, Jane felts soft roving into stiff, strong material that holds form.

You can find Jane in front of a high school classroom, leading an adult arts workshop, or exhibiting her work across South Jersey galleries.
