

Xiong Ying Wang

Bio

Xiong Ying Wang is a self-taught book sculpture artist who transforms discarded books into intricate works of art through cutting, folding, measuring, and paper manipulation techniques. With more than seven years of experience, her work celebrates literature, sustainability, and the creative possibilities of giving forgotten books new life. She continues to expand her artistic practice by exploring new techniques, pushing the limits of book sculpture, and experimenting with other art forms to discover new ways of expressing creativity through paper and beyond.