

Charles Wray

BIO

After a 38-year career in journalism, Charles Wray reconnected with his Middle School passion for woodworking. After outfitting a garage workshop in Egg Harbor Township, he was soon making custom creations for friends and family.

His works include offbeat display tables, whimsical fantasy guitars dolphin mobiles, and sculptural abstracts, all made from unstained hardwoods. His original creations have been shown at the Ocean City Arts Center, Ocean City Fine Arts League, Riverfront Renaissance Center for the Arts in Millville, Peace of Wood in Ocean City, Coastal Collective in Ventnor, The Noyes Arts Garage in Atlantic City and the former Nashville North Studios in Linwood.

Charles is the father of two grown children and lives in Egg Harbor Township, NJ, with his wife, Lindsay, also an artist. He is an adjunct instructor in U.S. History at Atlantic Cape Community College.
