

The role of:

the Stakeholders

The primary relationship in any coaching activity is between the coach and the coachee.

Other key stakeholders may include the Learning & Development team and the individual's line manager.

All parties are interested in improving the coachee's performance and subsequently their contribution to the organisation.

To realise a return on investment, it is essential to connect the coachee's personal objectives to the organisation's strategic objectives.