A Prayer by W.E.B. Dubois, Class of 1888

"God bless all schools and forward the great work of education for which we stand. Arouse within us and within our land a deep realization of the seriousness of our problem of training children. On them rests the future work and thought and sentiment and goodness of the world. If here and elsewhere we train the lazy and shallow, the self-indulgent and the frivolous, if we destroy reason and religion and do not rebuild, help us, O God, to realize how heavy is our responsibility and how great the cost. The school of today is the world of tomorrow and today and tomorrow are Thine, O God. Amen." Prayers for Dark People, W. E. B. Dubois, Edited by Herbert Aptheker (Amherst: The University of Massachusetts Press, 1980), 53.

Dedication of the Fisk Memorial Chapel, July, 1893

"At last Fisk may pride herself upon possessing an audience room suitable for the accommodations of her guests.... In the possession of this beautiful memorial chapel for our Sunday worship and for concerts and anniversary occasions, we are greatly rejoicing and today we say with deeper meaning than ever before, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." Dear Member of the Fisk Family,

I would like to express my gratitude to you for taking a moment to read the 2012-2013 Year in Review for the Fisk Memorial Chapel. Our efforts to realize the mission of the Chapel and to implement our vision to be a “beacon light for Jesus Christ” were a success as a direct result of the selfless efforts and contributions of Family members like you. Thank you! Recently, a person said to me: “But, I am not a graduate of Fisk University. How can I be a member of the Fisk Family?” If you support the mission of our beloved institution, and embrace our vision, then you are a member of the Fisk Family! Indeed, the impetus for producing this Year in Review was to say thank you to Fisk Family members like you for your love and support throughout the past academic year.

The Year in Review represents a literary expression of two fundamental ideas: 1) God is active in the life of our University community, and 2) the Church within the Chapel seeks to go beyond its walls to minister to the needs of a suffering humanity. This brief, pictorial overview of the academic year also seeks to capture these two ideas as they exist among our faculty, administrators, students, alumni, alumnae and friends throughout the nation. Lastly, this publication seeks to detail, in a very concrete way, the Christian themes of love, service and justice as they pertain to our city, state, nation and world. We pray that you may be able to see the hand of God moving in our lives as well as the lives of others as you read our Year in Review.

In 2012-2013, the Chapel was involved in social justice ministries with organizations such as Tennesseans for Alternatives to the Death Penalty and the Children’s Defense Fund (Zero Tolerance Policy), as well as organizations that sought to address the aftermath of the verdict concerning Trayvon Martin. During the past year, we helped to address the plight of hungry people and poor people through Soles4Souls and Bread for the World. Many students participated in the life of the Chapel through the Freshman Pinning Ceremony, the Chapel Assistants program, and the Leaders of the Interfaith Fellowship Team (L.I.F.T.). Members of the Fisk faculty served as mentors for students who chose the church as a career (e.g., Dr. Reavis Mitchell), while other faculty members (e.g., Provost Princilla Evans-Morris) facilitated educational discussions in the Chapel. Throughout the past year, our friends in Muslim, Christian and Jewish communities partnered with us for educational opportunities within and outside of the Chapel. Many alumni also discussed the role that the Chapel occupied and occupies in their lives. John Mbiti’s idea of family is stated in the following terms: “I am because we are; and since we are, therefore I am.” Our Year in Review captures but a glimpse of our Fisk Family from the perspective of the Chapel.

It does not matter where you are in our global community, there is a place for you in the Chapel! We look forward to seeing you, worshipping with you and working with you in person or digitally (in cyberspace) to serve a hopeful humanity. Again, thank you for your interest in and support of the Fisk Memorial Chapel. May God bless you and keep you.

In abiding faith,

The Reverend Jason Richard Curry, Ph.D.

The Class of 2016 Pinning Ceremony

The Fisk Family looks forward to welcoming the Freshman class to the University during the first two Sundays of the academic year. On August 12, 2012, the University community welcomed the Class of 2016 as well as their parents to Fisk University. On August 19, 2012, members of the Class of 2016 participated in a sacred rite of passage ceremony known as the "Freshman Pinning Ceremony." Each member of the entering class received a pin, which bears the insignia of the Fisk Jubilee Singers, from an upper-classman. The University community takes great pride in welcoming our newest brothers and sisters into the Fisk Family! Above, Ms. Shameka Thompson '16 receives her pin from Mr. Mark Crowder '15.

Educational Summit in the Fisk Memorial Chapel

On February 16, 2013, Representative Harold Love (Democrat—District 58, far left) convened a cadre of educators as well as a host of leaders in the public and private sector in order to discuss the methods and resources necessary to help the children in Nashville to succeed in educational arenas. Representatives from the following organizations participated in the discussion: The Nashville Chamber of Commerce, SORE, Tennessee Education Association, Tennessee School Board Association, Stand for Children, Charter School Association, Pearl-Cohn Magnet School, League of Women Voters, and Metro Nashville Public Schools.

HAVE FAITH. END HUNGER.

Dean Curry and Minister Philippe Andal '13 were privileged to talk with Fiskite and United States Representative John Lewis (D-Ga).

Bread for the World is a collective Christian voice urging our nation's leaders to end hunger at home and abroad. The Fisk Memorial Chapel is proud to partner with Bread for the World in a national effort to end hunger. In their effort to end hunger, Bread for the World provides opportunities for concerned citizens to lobby members of congress for the purpose of encouraging them to support legislation which puts a circle of protection around poor and hungry people. Real and proposed budget cuts to program such as SNAP (Supplement Nutrition Assistance Program, formally known as food stamps), Head Start, meals to senior citizens, free lunches for improvised children negatively impact poor and hungry people. Let's continue to do our part in ending poverty and hunger now!

International Exposure: The Alumnae of the Chapel Assistants Program

As a Chapel Assistant, Ms. Darria Janey Hudson '10 was extremely active in ministries related to social justice and community outreach. During the 2012-2013 academic year, Ms. Hudson traveled to Mexico to attend the School of Authentic Journalism (SAJ). SAJ is a program of NarcoNews, an independent media site that seeks to authentically tell individual stories of nonviolent resistance to oppression globally, but especially in the ongoing struggle against the Drug War in Latin America. Ms. Hudson, who is currently a student at Vanderbilt Divinity School, is pictured on the right.

Ms. Ronette Hoard '12 was active in the Music Ministry of the Fisk Memorial Chapel. Ms. Hoard was also a soprano with the Fisk Jubilee Singers while she was a student at Fisk. During the 2012-2013, Ms. Hoard visited Thailand. Her recent visit to Thailand proved to be a outstanding experience which also broadened her intellectual and cultural horizons. Ms. Hoard is pictured on the right in yellow.

Ms. Morgan Daniels '07 was an outstanding Chapel Assistant from 2003-2007. As a critical thinker, and life-longer learner, Ms. Daniels decided to embark on a cultural and educational excursion which included Naples, Rome, and Pisa, Italy, and Marseille, France. Ms. Daniels is pictured at the Colosseum in Rome.

Ms. Taryn Bell '07 was a teacher in Children's Church in the Fisk Memorial Chapel. After graduation, she became a teacher in elementary school at the Joelton Middle School in Tennessee. Currently, Ms. Bell teaches twelfth grade in the school system in Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates. This two-year educational commitment has afforded her the opportunity to travel extensively throughout the Middle East and Europe.

Tenor JORDAN HOLLAND hails from Columbus, Ohio, and is the second of three children. Surrounded by music from his mother's side of the family, it is no coincidence that Jordan would pick up the art form of singing.

Jordan began singing in the children's choir at his church. As time progressed he moved on to the youth choir, Nu Voices, where his musical talents began to blossom. He was a part of the choir in middle school. As he transitioned to high school, he joined the Freshmen Male Glee Choir. Jordan was also in the jazz ensemble, Soundsation, for two years, as well as two of the three choirs at his high school.

In 2006, Jordan was selected to be a part of the MTV television series, Made. During the filming process, he wrote and recorded the song King for a Day. Jordan transferred to Fisk University from North Carolina A&T State University in the fall of 2007. He performed frequently with other organizations and has performed numerous times with ensembles, such as the Fisk University Jazz Ensemble and the Fisk University Choir. Jordan was

Fisk Alumni and Friends Author's Panel

On May 3, 2013, Dean Curry was privileged to discuss his new book, The Star Book for Pastoral Counseling, during the Fisk Alumni and Friends Author's Panel at the John Hope and Aurelia Elizabeth Franklin Library at Fisk University. The following authors participated in the event: Dr. Jacquelyn F. Green (left), Ms. Francesca Smith James and Mr. Norwood Holland Jr. (not pictured).

A practical new volume in the best-selling Star Book series from Judson Press!

Rev. Dr. Jason Curry brings his experience as pastor, Dean of Chapel, and pastoral counselor to bear in offering church leaders a compact and comprehensive overview of pastoral counseling as a critical aspect of pastoral care. Dr. Curry covers topics from a foundational definition of pastoral counseling to the unique considerations in counseling women, African Americans, and others. One chapter is devoted to the most common types of pastoral counseling in the parish setting: premarital, grief, and addictions, while other chapters explore group dynamics in counseling couples and families. This pocket-sized volume provides categories for the intake interview, suggestions for planning the counseling session, instructions for creating a genogram, and brief discussions of legal and ethical issues. The book includes a chapter about designing a pastoral counseling program in your own church!

The Reverend C. T. Vivian is a living legend of the Civil Rights Movement, and he continues his activism today, tirelessly working for the progress of African Americans and the civil and political rights of all peoples. An uplifting speaker, and current President of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, he has addressed audiences in 42 states, 10 countries, and on countless campuses nationwide on the issues of civil rights, non-violence, racism and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. with whom he worked for many years.

As a Baptist minister, his first use of non-violent direct action was in 1947, to end Peoria's segregated lunch counters. Later he founded the Nashville Christian Leadership Conference, organizing the first sit-ins there in 1960 and the first civil rights march in 1961. Rev. Vivian was a rider on the first "Freedom Bus" into Jackson, Mississippi, and went on to work along-side Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on his Executive Staff in Birmingham, Selma, Chicago, Nashville. the March on Washington; Danville, Virginia; and St. Augustine, Florida. During the summer following the Selma Movement, Rev. Vivian conceived and directed an educational program, Vision, and put 702 Alabama students in college with scholarships. The program later became Upward Bound.

Mr. Patton arrived in Montgomery, AL on Tuesday, May 23 to help reinforce the riders meeting at the home of Dr. Harris after the May 21 firebombing and siege of Montgomery's First Baptist Church.

Ernest "Rip" Patton, Jr. took part in the May 24, 1961 Greyhound Freedom Ride to Jackson, MS, where he was arrested and later transferred to Mississippi's notorious Parchman State Prison Farm.

Mr. Patton was one of 14 Tennessee State University students expelled for participating in the Rides. Following the Freedom Rides, he worked as a jazz musician, and later as a long-distance truck driver and community leader. For the past three years, Mr. Patton has served as the Freedom Rider on an annual university sponsored Civil Rights tour of the Deep South.

African-American fraternities and sororities have always played a critical role in the success of the Fisk Memorial Chapel. Their presence and influence has impacted every aspect of our University community. BAPTIZING PARISHIONERS IN JESUS' NAME

On December 2, 2012, members of the Church within the Chapel gathered at Payne Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church, where the Rev. Dr. Sidney F. Bryant serves as Pastor, in order to baptize two Fisk University students who recently accepted Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior.

In the Great Commission, which can be found in Matthew 28:18-20, Jesus gives the following charge to his disciples: "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Therefore go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you. And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age." In response to the Great Commission, and in service to the spiritual needs of the people who frequent the Church within the Chapel, Dean Curry performed two baptisms on December 2, 2012. Ms. Cierra Lewis '15 and Ms. Marticia Hawkins '16 were baptized at Payne Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church (AMEC) in Nashville, Tennessee. Ms. Lewis and Ms. Hawkins accepted Christ as Lord and Savior during the fall semester of 2012. They asked Dean Curry, who is a licensed and ordained Itinerant Elder in the AME Church, if they could be baptized. We are truly grateful that they were baptized, which is an outward expression of an inward transformation.

Religious Emphasis Week (REW) is both an ecumenical and interfaith endeavor at Fisk University. It is a week which overtly seeks to strengthen the body of Christ while it recognizes and celebrates the diversity of religious experience. Diversity is a Core Value at Fisk, and although the majority of the organized and registered groups on campus have a mission statement which boldly reflects the values of the Church, there are also prominent individuals on campus who proudly embrace the tenants of religions such as Islam and Judaism. Just as Jesus had a meaningful conversation with the Samaritan woman at the well about the Living Waters (John 4:1-42), members of the Fisk Family look forward to meaningful dialogue with people of the same faith and different faiths. We are grateful for all of the members of the Fisk Family who helped to make Religious Emphasis Week a huge success!

Fisk University Recognizes and Celebrates the Contributions of the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Through the Chapel

Bishop William Morris, a retired Bishop in the United Methodist Church, delivered the Martin Luther King Convocation address.

January 21, 2013 was a special day for two reasons: 1) People from around the world would celebrate the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and 2) President Barack Obama, the nation's first African-American President, would deliver his second inaugural address on the steps of the United States Capitol building. Four Chapel Assistants, Darrin Sims '13, Cameron Ramos '16, Brittney Miles '13 and Philippe Andal '13 drove to Washington DC to be present for President Obama's inauguration. In honor of Dr. King's birthday, they visited the Martin Luther King Memorial in the early morning of the President's address.

Dean Curry and Fisk University students participated in the annual Martin Luther King Day March on January 21, 2013 which concluded at Tennessee State University.

Fisk University students prepare to depart the Chapel in order to participate in the Martin Luther King Day march on Jefferson street.

The Fisk Memorial Chapel Assistants have been ardent supporters of Soles4Souls for several years. The sneakers and shoes that were collected for the year were distributed to impoverished families throughout the world. Recently, the Chapel has begun to donate clothing items to one of Soles4Souls' auxiliary services called Clothes4Souls. The sneakers, shoes and clothing items pictured above were collected by students throughout the entire academic year. Vincent E. Stokes II

June 29

It was a hot humid day in Nashville on Sunday, August 19, 2005. It was my second day on the campus of Umm University (we had to earn the right to say Fisk) and we were beginning Freshmen Orientation week. Chapel was the first thing on the agenda of the day and I was excited because I enjoy worship. My roommate Akin Flood didn't have "proper" clothes for chapel so I told him I'd wear some shorts to chapel with him so he wouldn't feel like he was the only one not "properly dressed". So we went to chapel. My first experience in a chapel on a college campus. We sung What A Fellowship for the congregational hymn as the sun pierced through the windows upon the university choir adorned in their all black attire fanning with the manila Fisk Memorial Chapel program because the then 113 year old chapel had no air. A lady...(President O'Leary) was sitting in a pink sports jacket was sitting in the pulpit beside her was a tall yellow man vested in a black robe with three African chevrons on the arms. I assumed he was the preacher. This tall yellow man approached the pulpit and preaches from a familiar passage of scripture Matthew 16 where Jesus says "upon this rock I build my church and the gates of hell will not prevail against it" and he tagged the text with the theme "The Church Within the Chapel." I sat and listened to him and while it was not the style of homiletics that I was traditionally used to hearing with a whoop and a Hammond I recall the sermon being challenging to me as a college student and encouraging me as a college student. Nonetheless I found chapel boring and vowed I would never return. But something happened. I was drawn back to chapel each week to hear a good hymn and a good sermon. The things I thought were boring I grew fond of. Chapel convicted me, confronted me, and challenged me to not only talk about Christ but to live out my creed with Christ in tangible ways. Folks might say he's boring or he can't preach because he does not use the sacred desk as a means to entertain but as a means to help formulate and give a foundation to the faith of growing college students in their faith.... Dean Curry exemplifies humility with pride and humbleness with dignity. He challenged me as a professor..., he challenged me as a student leader, and he challenged me as a preacher. He is a man of high moral character as noble as they come and has given his time, talent, and treasure to a university When you have a calling and not a career and (when) you vow not to do things, God has a way of making you do them anyhow, just ask the prophet Jeremiah. Dean Curry gave me my first internship working for the chapel, his character is part of the reason I wanted to become an Omega and he wrote my letter of recommendation, he helped me..., he's the one who helped me think through my call in ministry while at Fisk, he's the reason I went to Yale and not to Howard, he supported me in divinity school when I was going to quit, he's a great preacher, a great mentor, a great father, a great husband, a great servant of God and today is my frat, my professor, my benefactor, my friend, and my mentor the Rev. Jason Richard Curry's, PhD birthday. Thank you Dean Curry for all that you have done to help me and to mold me into the preacher I am today. Happy birthday Buffalo Soldier hope your day is full of the love and joy you bring and share with others! — with Fisk Chapel.

National Day of Prayer Bus Tour Comes to Fisk

The mission of the National Day of Prayer Task Force is to mobilize prayer in America and to encourage personal repentance and righteousness in the culture.

The National Day of Prayer is an annual observance held on the first Thursday of May, inviting people of all faiths to pray for the nation. It was created in 1952 by a joint resolution of the United States Congress, and signed into law by President Harry S. Truman. The Pray for America Rally Tour, commissioned by the National Day of Prayer Task Force, began a 23,000 mile, 300-city, 100-day, 37-state tour on May 31 in Pittsburgh, PA. On July 22, 2013, the National Prayer Bus visited Fisk University. Many people in our University community were greatly blessed by the prayers and songs that were led by churches and nonprofit organizations throughout the city, region and nation.

Children's Defense Fund Cradle to Prison Pipeline® Health Factsheet Ensure Health Coverage for All Children

FACTS:

- Nine million children – that's one in nine – have no health insurance. A child is born uninsured every 39 seconds. And about 800,000 pregnant women are uninsured, while each year, approximately 28,000 infants die in America before they reach their first birthday.
- Uninsured children are less likely than insured children to get regular health care. Uninsured children are almost nine times as likely to have a medical need that goes unmet than a child with health coverage, and are five times as likely as an insured child to go more than two years without seeing a doctor.
- Uninsured children are more likely than insured children to perform poorly in school. In contrast, enrolling children in health coverage has been associated with greatly improved school performance. For example, for dental-related illness alone, children missed more than 51 million hours of school in a year.
- Health care costs are rising, and that affects everyone – including families with insurance. The average annual premium for employer-sponsored family coverage in 2008 was more than $12,500. Fewer businesses are able to afford coverage for their employees, and many of those who kept their employer-sponsored or private coverage saw increases in costs and reductions in benefits. As a result, millions of children are underinsured—with health plans that seriously limit their access to critical services such as vision and dental care, prescription drugs and mental health care services. Consequently, they may delay or forgo preventive care and treatment due to cost or other barriers.
- Providing nine million uninsured children with vision, dental, and mental health coverage would cost each person in America less than $1 each week. That's less than 15¢ a day.

Children of the King: Teaching, Supporting and Protecting African-American Children A Commentary by Jason Curry

The Reverend Dr. Jason Richard Curry is Dean of the Fisk Memorial Chapel at Fisk University. He can be reached at jcurry@fisk.edu or www.fiskmemorialchapel.com.

It is not uncommon for men and women who are entering the Christian ministry to serve a pastor and congregation as a Youth Minister or Director of Young Adult Ministries. I am extremely grateful for the love and support of one of my father's in the ministry, the Reverend Sidney F. Bryant, Pastor of Payne Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church, for affording me the opportunity to address the spiritual needs of children and young adults as the Youth Minister. I truly enjoyed teaching, counseling and advising children and young adults in a supportive and Christian atmosphere. It is refreshing to know that churches, non-profits organizations, community based organization (CBO's) and non governmental organizations (NGO's) are continuing to address the holistic needs of children in general and African-American children in particular. As a young adult, I also found value working for a non-profit organization known as Tutoring Plus as the Director who organized efforts to provide academic instruction to underprivileged children who were and were not homeless. The mission statements of many of these organizations boldly declare that children are invaluable resources, and that they should be supported, encouraged, instructed and protected because they are unable to advocate for themselves. Jesus the Christ also found value in children for he told his disciples: "Let the children come unto me, do not hinder them, for to such belongs the kingdom of heaven (Matthew 19:14)." One would naturally assume that everyone finds value in teaching, supporting and protecting African-American children. It is a bit disconcerting to know that the Disciples wanted to keep children away from Jesus. Matthew 19:13 states: "Then children were brought to Jesus that he might lay his hands on them and pray. The disciples rebuked the people." According to the 2012 Report of the Children's Defense Fund, "Black children and teens experienced nearly 60 percent of all gun injuries caused by an assault in 2009 while White children and teens accounted for eight percent." Data for additional sources stated that approximately one-third of all African-American children live below the poverty line. Also, the data suggest that the rate of reported abuse among African-American children is disproportionately higher than that of children of other backgrounds. Jesus loved children. He took them in his arms and blessed them (Mark 10:16). Let us continue to promote and support programs within and outside of the church which teach, encourage and protect African-American children. Let us continue to partner with recognized and credible CBO's and NGO's which advocate on behalf of African-American children. The children of today are the church of tomorrow; therefore, the teachings and stewardship of Christ must forever serve as our model for helping children who are in need of care.

The Chapel and Tennesseans for Alternatives to the Death Penalty

In response to Jesus' mandate to "love your neighbors (Mark 12:31)," and to "love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you (Matthew 5:44)," the Chapel Assistants attended a conference regarding the biases and challenges associated with the death penalty on February 23, 2013. Pictured from left to right: Ms. Alonyia Godfrey '16, Ms. Jade Hendricks '16, Reverend Stacy Rector, Executive Director of Tennesseans for Alternatives to the Death Penalty, Dr. Richard Goode, Professor at Lipscomb University, Mr. Lannie Smith '15, Ms. Courtney Macon '14, Mr. Randolph Wilson and Dean Curry.

"ONLY ONE OUT OF EVERY 100 CONVICTED MURDERERS IS SENTENCED TO DEATH. THOSE PERPETRATORS SENTENCED TO DEATH ARE NOT THOSE WHOSE CRIMES WERE THE 'WORST OF THE WORST.' INSTEAD, THEY ARE DISPROPORTIONATELY THE POOR, PEOPLE OF COLOR, THOSE WITH MENTAL ILLNESS, AND THOSE WHOSE VICTIMS ARE WHITE. AROUND 90% OF THOSE ON DEATH ROW WERE FINANCIALLY UNABLE TO HIRE ATTORNEYS TO REPRESENT THEM AT TRIAL."

Wrongfully Convicted and No Longer on Death Row

Mr. Ndume Olatushani

Ndume Olatushani spent nearly 27 years in prison, 19 of which were on death row, for the 1983 murder of Joe Belechia in Memphis. Although Ndume had never been to Tennessee and many witnesses put him in St. Louis at his mother's birthday party at the time of the crime, he was convicted and sentenced to death. In 2011, Ndume's conviction was overturned when the Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals found that some of the state's witnesses had close ties to other suspects, which could have led them to implicate Ndume. He was awarded a new trial, and later offered an Alford plea, granting him an immediate release, if he pled guilty to second-degree murder and accepted a sentence of time served. Ndume took the deal, maintained his innocence as he always had, and was released on July 1, 2012.

Remembering Trayvon Martin

Trayvon Martin

"When Trayvon Martin was first shot, I said that this could have been my son," President Obama stated on July 19, 2013. "Another way of saying that is Trayvon Martin could have been me 35 years ago."

President Barack Obama

The state of Tennessee has a Stand Your Ground law. A significant percentage of students who attend Fisk University, which is located in Tennessee, are African-American males between the ages of eighteen and twenty-two. It is not inconceivable that the same set of circumstances which contributed to the violent and untimely death of Trayvon Martin could one day affect one of our students. We pray that this will never come to fruition. However, racial profiling and Stand Your Ground laws must end because they have the potential to negatively impact African-Americans, in general, and Fisk students in particular. The record states that justice for an unarmed, African-American teenager who was simply walking to his house has not been achieved. As we continue to stand for Trayvon Martin, we continue to stand for ourselves, and the best that is within our American democracy.

On July 20, 2013, Dean Curry, the Chapel Assistants and members of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. stood outside of the Federal building in downtown Nashville seeking an end to racial profiling and Stand Your Ground laws.

On March 24, 2012, hundred of citizens, including Fisk University students, attended a city-wide rally in support of Trayvon Martin across from the Bicentennial Mall in downtown Nashville.

Trayvon Martin Will Always Matter: Race, Reasonability and Christ's Love
A Commentary by Jason Curry

The Reverend Dr. Jason Richard Curry is Dean of the Fisk Memorial Chapel at Fisk University. He can be reached at jcurry@fisk.edu or www.fiskmemorialchapel.com.

American institutions that dare to place an emphasis on multiculturalism and diversity often produce or prepare students, teachers or other employees for leadership in political and economic arenas. I am a proud graduate (Harvard and Vanderbilt) and current employee (Fisk) of a few of these institutions. Civic, cultural, academic and religious institutions that have sought to embrace, develop and promote people of all races because of the merit of their work as opposed to the color of the skin, have boldly declared in their policies and procedures that America can and will move beyond its ugly history of racism. Indeed, the transcendent progress that we have made in this nation in the area of race relations serves as a beacon light to nations throughout the world that are seeking to address issues of race, ethnicity, liberty and justice. Unfortunately, the tragedy that claimed the life of Trayvon Martin has undermined some of the transcendent strides that we have made a nation.

We are all familiar with the case of Trayvon Martin, a seventeen year old, unarmed African-American teenager who was stalked, shot and killed by an older, heavier, Caucasian-American man named George Zimmerman. Trayvon Martin was not in the process of committing a crime, nor had he committed a crime. He was simply walking to his father's house in an affluent, predominantly white neighborhood. Apparently, George Zimmerman identified "walking while African-American" as a crime. The verdict of "Not Guilty" for Mr. Zimmerman is disturbing because Trayvon Martin is symbolic of every African-American teenager who is or was profiled, stalked and/or killed even though they have not committed a crime. As a result of this verdict, and as an African-American who has two sons enrolled in a prestigious predominantly white school in Nashville, I will worry about my sons as they run with other young men in a predominantly white neighborhood which surrounds their school. Some of my colleagues have stated that race may not have been a factor in this case, however, they cannot seem to name an historical precedent in which a middle-class, white male was stalked and killed by an African-American male and the African-American was found "Not Guilty."

I am a proud American, and I am of the opinion that the initial racial profiling of Trayvon Martin identifies this case as a hate crime. Jesus Christ reminds us that only love (not hate) has a place within the human family (Matthew 22:36-40). As citizens, we have a responsibility, indeed a moral obligation, to continue forming a "more perfect union." I look forward to working with those who remain committed to enhancing our democracy in general, and our communities, in particular through love, liberty and justice for all.

Minister Brandon J. Perkins '10 (far right) and Rev. Dr. Augustus Curry (middle) discuss Mr. George Zimmerman's verdict on the Religion Roundtable which appeared on Comcast and ATT Uverse on the AIB Television Network. The television program was hosted by Dr. Ralph Basui Watkins (far right).

A Brief History of the Fisk Memorial Chapel

The Fisk Memorial Chapel, with a seating capacity of approximately eight hundred, was designed by William B. Bigelow of New York City and completed in 1892. General Clinton B. Fisk, a founder of the University, left funds for construction to the University in the form of railroad stock. The interior has a high domed ceiling exposing the appealing support structures. A balcony extends on three sides. The Chapel houses an extraordinary 40 rank Holtkamp pipe organ, which is one of the finest examples in the United States of the work of organ-builder, Walter Holtkamp Sr. The organ has an estimated value of over $2.5 million. It was built especially for the University to be housed in the Chapel. Over the entrance doors is Isaiah 60:1: "Arise shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

The Chapel is the primary assembly area on campus and is rich in intellectual and cultural traditions. Since its construction, it has served as the site for numerous public functions sponsored by the University, including concerts, The Spring Arts Festival, academic convocations, lectures, conferences and graduation exercises. Heads of foreign countries have been received and honored on its platform, and television and movie productions have been staged in the Chapel. Outstanding international concert artists, musical organizations, drama and dance performances, lecturers, ministers and political figures have also appeared in the Chapel.

Included among those who have visited the Chapel, given addresses, performed for students and community members are The Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Duke Ellington, Thurgood Marshall, Booker T. Washington, Louis Armstrong, W. C. Handy, Jesse Jackson, Nat King Cole, Eubie Black, Merle Haggard, Robert Altman, John Hope Franklin and Bell Hooks. The Chapel is the home performance site for the famous Fisk Jubilee Singers.

In 1992, the Chapel was restored under the direction of the U. S. Park Service, through an appropriation from the U. S. Congress. A rededication ceremony was held in August 1992, which also marked the 100th anniversary of the building, at which occasion a litany was written by Dr. L. M. Collins. Special awards by The Victorian Society in America, the Tennessee Historical Commission and the American Institution of Architects – Tennessee, have recognized the historic restoration of the building.
