JANUARY 18, 2026 THE SECOND SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Dear friends,

You may know it, but there is a top five list of favorite Catholic Hymns—Be Not Afraid, On Eagles Wings, How Great Thou Art, Amazing Grace and Here I Am Lord. Sound familiar? This last hymn, “Here I Am, Lord” finds its roots in the Book of Samuel. We read about a young Samuel who hears the Lord calling, but thinks it is his spiritual guide and mentor Eli. He is young and has not yet learned to discern the ways of the Lord. Eli leads him to trust that it is God that is calling him.

I think there is something in all of us that wants to believe that if God calls us, we would be willing to say “Here I am Lord, I come to do your will.” I think that is why the hymn “Here I Am” is so popular.

While we may all have the genuine desire to follow Jesus, it can be more challenging to determine when it is that God is calling and just how we are to respond to that call. The scriptures are full of stories of people who do not recognize God’s call in their lives or, when they do recognize it, dismiss it by claiming they are not worthy of the call or even have the ability to do what God is asking.

This coming Monday we remember the work of the great Baptist minister—Martin Luther King. As a young minister, he saw the injustices that so many people of color were facing and he had the courage to respond. At the time, he was a young minister—in his mid twenties when he became the moral voice of the civil rights movement. There was a price to this decision. He risked upsetting people by pointing out the sin of racism. He was sent to jail and many well intentioned religious leaders of the day told him to stop pushing so hard for change. He risked physical harm when people fire bombed his house and made numerous threatening phone calls.

I keep thinking back to when I was in my late twenties—a young newly ordained priest. Would I have had the courage to respond? But that was his work and not mine. God does not give us strength to do the work of someone else, but only the strength to do the work that is ours to do.

As we try to do what God asks of us, our life can be filled with hesitant steps, choices that are surrounded with confusion leaving us wondering if we are on the right path. On most days, all we have for certain is the desire to do the right thing. Thomas Merton, a twentieth-century monk from the Abbey of Gethsemane in Kentucky spoke eloquently of this predicament in a prayer that he composed.

My Lord God, I have no idea where I am going. do not see the road ahead of me. I cannot know for certain where it will end. Nor do I really know myself, and the fact that I think I am following your will does not mean that I am actually doing so. But I believe that the desire to please you does in fact, please you. And I hope I have that desire in all that I am doing. I hope that I will never do anything apart from that desire. And I know that if I do this, you will lead me by the right road, though I may know nothing about it. Therefore will I trust you always, through I may seem to be lost and in the shadow of death. I will not fear, for you are ever with me, and you will never leave me to face my perils alone. Amen

Leaning into the journey of life

Fr. Gene Schroeder

Today may there be peace within.
May you trust your highest power that you are exactly where you are meant to be. May you not forget the infinite possibilities that are born of faith. May you use those gifts that you have received, and pass on the love that has been given to you. May you be content knowing you are a child of God. Let this presence settle into your bones, and allow your soul the freedom to sing, dance, praise and love.

It is there for each and every one of you.
Prayer of St. Mother Teresa

MEN'S CLUB MEETING--MONDAY @ 7 PM IN THE CAFETERIA

ON THE LOVE FOR THE POOR

We are reading from the Apostolic Exhortation Delexi Te of Pope Leo to all Christians on the Love of the Poor

The monastic tradition teaches us that prayer and charity, silence and service, cells and hospitals form a single spiritual fabric. The monastery is a place of listening and action, of worship and sharing. Saint Bernard of Clairvaux, the great Cistercian reformer, firmly recalled the need for a sober and measured life, in the refectory as in monastic clothing and buildings, recommending the support and care of the poor. For him, compassion was not an option, but the true path of following Christ. Monastic life, therefore, if faithful to its original vocation, shows that the Church is fully the bride of the Lord only when she is also the sister of the poor. The cloister is not only a refuge from the world, but a school where one learns to serve it better. Where monks and nuns have opened their doors to the poor, the Church has revealed with humility and firmness that contemplation does not exclude mercy, but demands it as its purest fruit.

Freeing prisoners

Since apostolic times, the Church has seen the liberation of the oppressed as a sign of the Kingdom of God. Jesus himself proclaimed at the beginning of his public ministry: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives" (Lk 4:18). The early Christians, even in precarious conditions, prayed for and assisted their brothers and sisters who were prisoners, as the Acts of the Apostles and various writings of the Fathers attest. This mission of liberation has continued throughout the centuries through concrete actions, especially when the tragedy of slavery and imprisonment has marked entire societies.

Between the late twelfth and the early thirteenth centuries, when many Christians were captured in the Mediterranean or enslaved in wars, two religious orders arose: the Order of the Most Holy Trinity and of the Captives (Trinitarians), and the Order of the Blessed Virgin Mary of Mercy (Mercedarians). These communities of consecrated persons were born with the specific charism of freeing Christians who had been enslaved, placing their own possessions at the disposal of the enslaved and many times offering their own lives in exchange. The Trinitarians, with their motto Gloria tibi Trinitas et captiis libertas (Glory to you, O Trinity, and liberty to the captives), and the Mercedarians, who added a fourth vow to the religious vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, testified that charity can be heroic. The liberation of prisoners is an expression of Trinitarian love: a God who frees not only from spiritual slavery but also from concrete oppression. The act of rescuing someone from slavery and captivity is seen as an extension of Christ's redemptive sacrifice, whose blood is the price of our redemption.

The original spirituality of these orders was deeply rooted in contemplation of the cross. Many gave their own bodies to replace prisoners, literally fulfilling the commandment: "No one has greater love than this, to lay down one's life for one's friends" (Jn 15:13).

The tradition of these orders did not come to an end. On the contrary, it inspired new forms of action in the face of modern forms of slavery: human trafficking, forced labor, sexual exploitation and various forms of dependency. Even today, when millions of people – children, women and men of all ages – are deprived of their freedom and forced to live in conditions akin to slavery, this legacy is carried on by these orders and other institutions and congregations working in urban peripheries, conflict zones and migration routes. When the Church bends down to break the new chains that bind the poor, she becomes a paschal sign. TO BE CONTINUED
