St. Joseph Vanderburgh County
and "St. Joseph School
Vanderburgh County"

Dear friends,

A big thanks for all the work so many of you did working at our Fall Festival Booths last week. You are continuing a long line of people who have given so generously of their time to support the ministries of our parish.

Another faithful group is our mowing crews, along with those who have helped clear snow in the winter and helped with our fall campus leaf cleanup. All these efforts keep our parish campus looking so great. We are always appreciative of this effort, especially through all the hot days of summer. This week we'd like to make our "thanks" a little more real by inviting our mowing crews, snow removal crews and fall clean up crews to a little celebration at St. Joe Inn this coming Wednesday. Come anytime between 5 and 7 pm and we will have pizza's, hors d'oeuvres and your favorite beverage. You deserve it!

On another maintenance note, you may have noticed workers here last week to install new windows in the rectory/parish office. Some folks thought we put new windows in when we remodeled this building in 2010 but they were actually installed forty-four years ago in 1982.

While in a thankful mode, I want the 120 families who have already made their pledge to our Catholic Ministries Appeal for this year. With their help we have almost reached half of our goal. My prayer is that their generosity will inspire the other four hundred families to make their pledge to our CMA appeal this year.

BILLY CODY One final note. Several members of our parish are spearheading an effort to help provide some financial support to the family of Billy Cody to help with the funeral expenses they incurred at the time of his death last month. To that end, they are inviting people to buy tickets to a fried chicken dinner on Thursday, November 5. The menu will include fried chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans, corn and roll. Cost is $20/ticket with further donations accepted. You can also contribute to this money without buying a chicken dinner. Just send them to the parish office and note on the contribution that is for "Billy Cody Fund." Thanks in advance for your support to Amy Cody and her family.

Leaning into the journey of life,

Fr. Gene Schroeder

STEWARDSHIP: The Lord's Way

In today's gospel, Jesus asks the rich young man to give away all that he has in order to have treasure in heaven. But he is unable to free himself from his possessions, and so goes sadly away. Does what I own keep me from following Jesus?

This week we continue reading Pope Leo's letter (encyclical) Magnifica Humanitas: On the protection of the human person in the age of artificial intelligence

A litmus test for social justice today is the treatment of migrants, refugees and those forced to move due to poverty, violence, climate change and environmental disasters. The way a society treats them reveals whether its sense of justice is driven by fear or by the spirit of fraternity. Pope Francis urged us to see migrants not simply as a problem to be managed, but as a living image of the People of God on the move. They are people with dignity, resources and dreams, who have the right to be treated with respect and to ask to become active members of the societies that welcome them.

Social justice in this area entails at least two complementary commitments. On the one hand, this means protecting the rightful hopes of those forced to leave by ensuring safe and legal routes, dignified conditions for receiving them, and genuine pathways to integration. On the other hand, it means promoting the right to remain in one's homeland in peace and security by addressing the root causes that force people to migrate, including those linked to economic injustices and the climate crisis. When these rights are respected, migration can become an opportunity for encounter and mutual enrichment among peoples.

INTEGRAL HUMAN DEVELOPMENT

In his Encyclical Populorum Progressio, Paul VI affirmed that development is authentic only if it is "integral," meaning that it can foster the development of each man and of the whole man. In the decades that followed, the Social Doctrine of the Church reprised and reflected on this expression in order to indicate the practical ways in which the noble principles — dignity, the common good, the universal destination of goods, subsidiarity, solidarity and social justice — are implemented in real life. By "integral human development," we mean a process in which the growth of individuals and peoples encompasses all dimensions of existence and opens the future to subsequent generations as well.

For individuals as well as for nations, development is both a duty and a right. Minimum conditions are required for enabling every person and people to flourish in accord with their dignity, without being kept in a state of dependence or excluded from access to necessary goods. Development is truly human when it places people at the center instead of the accumulation of wealth, and when it concerns peoples as well as individuals. Justice demands the recognition of the rights of society and the rights of peoples, and includes a responsibility toward future generations.

Development is not truly human if it increases consumption for some while shifting costs and burdens onto others, or relegates entire regions to subordinate roles, preventing them from realizing their full potential. Development is integral when it is not limited to the economic sphere, but promotes quality of life in its spiritual, cultural, moral and relational dimensions, while respecting our common home, the diversity of peoples and their ways of life.

Today, the concept of integral human development is a benchmark for the evaluation of integral ecology, which has become an indispensable dimension of the Church's Social Doctrine. Indeed, the quality of development is measured by the ability to integrate justice toward people and the care of our common home, and to promote dignified living conditions, access to necessary goods, just social relations, care of creation and consideration for future generations. It follows that true progress is not what increases the wellbeing of some by degrading ecosystems, shifting costs onto the most disadvantaged communities, or compromising the living conditions of those who will follow us.

Seen in this light, integral human development is the framework through which we can interpret the changes of our time, including those brought about by the digital revolution. Technological innovations, including artificial intelligence, are not neutral, for they can either foster participation and justice or exacerbate inequality, control and exclusion. For this reason, they must be evaluated by asking a crucial question: Do they truly help individuals and peoples to become more humane and fraternal, while respecting our common home and future generations? It is here that the principles of Social Doctrine become concrete criteria for discernment regarding the issues which we will address in the following chapters.

In conclusion, I would like to touch on a point that is particularly close to my heart. Social Doctrine is not merely a message addressed to society; it is also an examination of conscience for the Church — a home and school of communion that is always called to ensure that the principles outlined in this chapter are applied, especially within its own structures.
