Dear friends,

And the word became flesh and made his dwelling among us. What came to be through him was life, and this life was the light of the human race; the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it.

When Jesus chose to make his dwelling among us, he did it in the midst of the world that was and He did not attempt to change the way things were going in people's lives. He agreed to be part of the world that the people were experiencing. As he chose to stand with people, he also taught them how to be light to themselves and to others in that world. That's the great gift he gives to us. Learning how to stand in solidarity with all the people in our world. In his great prayer for his disciples, Jesus prays that they not be taken out of the world but that they may learn to live in the world and be life for the world.

As we prepare to celebrate Christmas, I give thanks for the gift you are in being light to the world. God makes his dwelling in you. As you allow the life of God to flow through you, you are being light that shines so brightly that even the darkness that is present in so much of the world, does not overcome it.

You are being light when you are loving your children and grandchildren, when you do the countless and untold number of tasks each day to keep the family going. You are being light when you serve our parish in by offering your time in service to the children of our school and for a whole host of ways you keep our parish running.

You are being light when you support of our Needy Fund, or contributed to our annual "Diaper Bag Express" to benefit young unwed fathers and mothers through Birthright. You are being light when you help provide groceries through our weekly food collection for the St. Vincent DePaul Food Pantry and our "Sausage for the Homeless" campaign. You are being light through your support of the Catholic Build for Habitat.

You are being light by buying food for our students in Haiti, sponsoring a child's education, becoming a sponsor for our sewing hope program and so many other ways that you stand with our brothers and sisters in Haiti. In all these ways, and countless more, you are giving the gift of Christ himself.

Leaning into the journey of life

Fr. Gene Schroeder

P.S. In this Christmas time of giving and receiving gifts, don't forget about your gift to God. This can be an opportunity to "make up" on your giving for the year. Your love for our parish has always seen us through in the past so I place our present financial needs confidently in your hands.

BLESSED ARE YOU WHO BEAR THE LIGHT

*Blessed are you
who bear the light
in unbearable times,
who testify to its endurance
amid the unendurable,
ho bear witness
to its persistence
when everything seems
in shadow and grief.
Blessed are you
in whom the light
lives, in whom the brightness blazes
your heart a chapel,
an altar where in the deepest night
can be seen the fire
that shines forth in you
in unaccountable faith
in stubborn hope
in love that illumines
every broken thing it finds.*

ON THE LOVE FOR THE POOR

We are reading from the Apostolic Exhortation Dilexi Te of Pope Leo to all Christians on the Love of the Poor
The true riches of the Church
Saint John Chrysostom

DILEXI TE

Among the Eastern Fathers, perhaps the most ardent preacher on social justice was Saint John Chrysostom, Archbishop of Constantinople from the late 300s to the early 400s. In his homilies, he exhorted the faithful to recognize Christ in the needy: "Do you wish to honor the body of Christ? Do not allow it to be despised in its members, that is, in the poor, who have no clothes to cover themselves. Do not honor Christ's body here in church with silk fabrics, while outside you neglect it when it suffers from cold and nakedness... [The body of Christ on the altar] does not need cloaks, but pure souls; while the one outside needs much care. Let us therefore learn to think of and honor Christ as he wishes. For the most pleasing honor we can give to the one we want to venerate is that of doing what he himself desires, not what we devise... So you too, give him the honor he has commanded, and let the poor benefit from your riches. God does not need golden vessels, but golden souls."

Affirming with crystal clarity that, if the faithful do not encounter Christ in the poor who stand at the door, they will not be able to worship him even at the altar, he continues: "What advantage does Christ gain if the sacrificial table is laden with golden vessels, while he himself dies of hunger in the person of the poor? Feed the hungry first, and only afterward adorn the altar with what remains." He understood the Eucharist, therefore, as a sacramental expression of the charity and justice that both preceded and accompanied it. That same charity and justice should perpetuate the Eucharist through love and attention to the poor.

Consequently, charity is not optional but a requirement of true worship. Chrysostom vehemently denounced excessive wealth connected with indifference for the poor. The attention due to them, rather than a mere social requirement, is a condition for salvation, which gives unjust wealth a condemnatory weight. "It is very cold and the poor man lies in rags, dying, freezing, shivering, with an appearance and clothing that should move you. You, however, red in the face and drunk, pass by. And how do you expect God to deliver you from misfortune?... You often adorn an unfeeling corpse, which no longer understands honor, with many varied and gilded garments. Yet you despise the one who feels pain, who is torn apart, tortured, tormented by hunger and cold." This profound sense of social justice leads him to affirm that "not giving to the poor is stealing from them, defrauding them of their lives, because what we have belongs to them."

Saint Augustine

Augustine's spiritual guide was Saint Ambrose, who insisted on the ethical requirement to share material goods: "What you give to the poor is not your property, but theirs. Why have you appropriated what was given for common use?" [34] For the Bishop of Milan, almsgiving is justice restored, not a gesture of paternalism. In his preaching, mercy takes on a prophetic character: he denounces structures that accumulate things and reaffirms communion as the Church's vocation.

Formed in this tradition, the holy Bishop of Hippo taught for his part about the preferential love for the poor. A vigilant pastor and theologian of rare insight, he realizes that true ecclesial communion is expressed also in the communion of goods. In his Commentaries on the Psalms, he reminds us that true Christians do not neglect love for those most in need: "Observing your brothers and sisters, you know if they are in need, but if Christ dwells in you, also be charitable to strangers." This sharing of goods therefore stems from theological charity and has as its ultimate goal the love of Christ. For Augustine, the poor are not just people to be helped, but the sacramental presence of the Lord.
