Dear friends,

One of the best compliments I got some years ago, was from a person who was frustrated with me because I seemed to always want to include food with gatherings of people. The note I got said "I know where your God is...in your stomach!" Now, I'm sure this person didn't intend it as a compliment but I took it as one because, after all, Jesus was very big on eating with people and wanting them to get together to share a meal! So, in keeping with the spirit of Jesus' teachings, this week we get to do what we do very well in our parish—fixing a great chicken dinner. We've been doing it for over a hundred years.

Lots of things have changed since those early days when folks brought a few chickens from their home and then butchered them and cleaned them. As one parishioner recalled from those early days, "if we sold 200 dinners we thought we were doing great."

Through the early years, before our school was built in 1958, folks brought their pots and pans and whatever else they needed and fixed up an outdoor kitchen on the lawn just east of the current rectory. They pleaded with Fr. Niehaus, the Pastor at that time, about getting the parish to buy some pots and pans but their pleas fell on deaf ears. His response—"we only do this once a year and surely people can bring the things they need from home."

We stepped into the "modern age" in 1958 when we could actually fix a chicken dinner inside in a new modern kitchen. Folks thought they had died and gone to heaven. We served a lot of sit down meals over the years. And, to try to keep people comfortable while they waited to be seated, we had them sit in church where it was air conditioned. That ruffled a few feathers at the time from folks who thought that was not a good use of the church, but I'm sure God didn't mind at all!

Now, since the pandemic we went through in 2020, we have been doing our drive thru chicken dinners. It is an amazing operation to what as 2600 dinners are put together and delivered to people through our drive thru.

Things have changed over the years, but one thing has remained the same—it's still a great chicken dinner! And we have great people who work together to make it happen.

Leaning into the journey of life,

Fr. Gene Schroeder

P.S. Thanks to all the folks who came to help make dumplings last Monday. We had a few less people than we normally had in the past, but it was a great crew who got all the work done. Thanks also to our "cookie" bakers for making over 5000 cookies!

Here are some dates and times to keep in mind as we make all the preparation for our chicken dinner next Sunday.

Thursday evening, July 23 at 5 pm, we will meet to bag up all the dinner cookies and set up the serving lines

Friday morning, July 24 at 7 am we will be doing all the dinner prep work for our chicken dinner: deboning chicken, cutting up vegetables, breaking bread and more!

Join us at noon to help make and package our famous sweet n' sour slaw

Saturday morning, July 25 at 9 am we will set up the drive through for the dinner and get the chicken frying room all ready as well.

Join us at 1 pm to help prepare all the chickens for the dinner. We will gather at the storage building.

Sunday morning, July 26 we will be frying chicken, making dumplings and dressing and cooking the corn and green beans. We need folks to be ready to package all the dinner. Be ready to start at 9 am.

After all this work is done, around 1 pm, we will clean up the cafeteria and kitchen and get all the tables and chairs set up in the cafeteria for school.

Join us for an after social party on Sunday afternoon. 3 pm The Men's Club is providing burgers, brauts, hot dogs and chips and whatever food we might have left over from the dinner to enjoy. We'll have the drawing for the grand raffle at 3 pm.

BECOME A HERO and BUY A FRIEND or NEIGHBOR A CHICKEN DINNER

This week we continue reading Pope Leo's letter (encyclical) Magnifica Humanitas: On the protection of the human person in the age of artificial intelligence

In Rerum Novarum, the Church's ancient wisdom regarding the human person and life in society took on a new form capable of responding to the industrial age and offering the first major systematic framework for the Social Doctrine that would be further developed in the following decades. While many of the historical conditions described by Leo XIII have changed, at least two insights remain highly relevant today: the primacy of human labor over any mindset focused solely on finance or productivity — with the consequent attention to the people and families most susceptible to exploitation — and the inseparable link between proclaiming the Gospel and pursuing a more just social order. Rerum Novarum thereby continues to remind us that there is no authentic evangelization that does not also affect the structures of human society.

Pius XI's Encyclical Quadragesima Anno was published in 1931 on the fortieth anniversary of Rerum Novarum at the height of a major global economic crisis, marking a further step in the Church's social teaching. Rather than limiting itself to addressing the "workforce question," it broadened its focus to encompass the overall structure of the economic and political order. The Encyclical denounces the concentration of economic power in the hands of a few; criticizes both unlimited competition and collectivist projects that undermine the freedom and responsibility of the individual; strongly affirms the workers' right to association; and reiterates the requirement that wages be proportionate not only to performance, but also to the needs of workers and their families.

Within this framework, Pius XI systematically formulated the principle of subsidiarity, which was to become one of the cornerstones of Social Doctrine. According to this principle, whatever can be carried out by individuals, families, intermediary organizations and local communities should not be carried out by higher-level authorities. Alongside these contributions, in various interventions of his Magisterium — from the Encyclicals Non Abbiamo Bisogno and Mit Brennender Sorge to Divini Redemptoris — Pius XI clearly recalled the societal role of private property and denounced forms of totalitarianism that demean the dignity of the person, stifle life in society, exalt the State above its just value and discriminate according to race.

At least three insights of his social teaching remain particularly relevant today: the awareness that injustice concerns not only individual behavior but also economic and institutional structures; the importance of the principle of subsidiarity, which calls for the strengthening of the fabric of associations and communities while avoiding further centralization of power; and the link between the dignity of work, fair remuneration and the genuine possibility for families to lead a dignified life.

In the tragic context of the Second World War, and the years of reconstruction that followed, the teachings of Pius XII made a significant contribution to the development of Social Doctrine. This is particularly true of his Christmas radio messages, in which he outlined the framework of an international order based on justice, peace and the recognition of human dignity. In these messages, the Pope proposed a dialogue with society based on an appeal to natural law understood as a set of objective principles that precede the interests of individuals and States, and which must regulate both the internal life of nations and their mutual relations.

Pius XII also attributed a decisive role to professional associations, labor unions and the various intermediary organizations in the economic and social order. He recognized these organized forms of society as an essential safeguard for civil equilibrium and for protecting the common good. He affirmed the need for a sound rule of law for guarding against the abuse of power, and he recognized democracy as a means for ensuring the proper exercise of authority. At the same time, he warned against any attempt to base law on utility or force, recalling that an international order governed by the advantage of the strongest exposes weaker peoples to oppression and fundamentally undermines trust between nations. Finally, Pius XII identified profound economic imbalances between countries as one of the factors fueling conflicts. Three guidelines remain particularly significant for our own times, currently marked by new forms of global power and growing inequalities: the need for law to take precedence over interests; the awareness that economic disparities are a breeding ground for tension and violence; and the necessity of a network of associations capable of mediating between the individual and the State. These guidelines continue to provide important criteria that enable Social Doctrine to interpret the dynamics of globalization and promote a more just and peaceful international order.
