and "St. Joseph School
Vanderburgh County"

Dear friends,

Once again I am inviting you to participate in our annual Catholic Ministries Appeal. Through this appeal we help to provide the money needed to do the work we do collectively as a diocese. Some of this work is very visible—providing support for the work of our schools and religious education programs, training people to serve as catechists, deacons and priests, helping to fund a pension program for the employees of our schools and parishes, and publishing our weekly diocesan newspaper The Message.

Some of this work may not be that visible—things like overseeing our common health insurance and property and liability insurance programs, supporting the Catholic Church in the State of Indiana through the Indiana Catholic Conference; the Catholic Church in the United States through the National Catholic Conference of Bishops; and to the Church Universal at the Vatican to help Pope Leo pay the costs for running the Universal Church. While we may be unfamiliar with this work, it, too, is important.

This year our share of the cost of running the diocese is $133,345. This is a $2,305 increase over last year. This is a 'bill' we owe the diocese. Should our CMA appeal fall short, we would need to take money from our general fund to pay whatever wasn't paid. So, you can see why it's important to reach our goal. I know there are many demands on our money, but I truly believe we have the means to provide the money needed to reach our parish goal.

Last year 68% of our parish families joined in making an average pledge of $430 to our CMA campaign. Together we were able to meet our goal. I'm confident that they will want to help out again by making a pledge again this year.

Last year 32% of our parish families were not in a position to financially support our Catholic Ministries campaign. My prayer is that the circumstances in their lives have changed so that they too can join our common effort. I am confident that if these families will join efforts made by those who have supported the CPC in the past, we will be able to meet and even exceed our parish goal of $133,345.

This week you will receive a letter inviting you to participate in our CMA Appeal. Please take some time to think and pray about how God is asking you to help do the work He has given to all of us. May the example of St. Joseph fill us with confidence and courage to share our money so that God's work can be done.

Leaning into the journey of life,

Fr. Gene Schroeder

Rooted in Christ.

Fruitful in Mission.

Dear friends of
St. Joseph Parish

This year our diocesan family seeks to raise $6,606, 556 through the Catholic Ministries Appeal. The share entrusted to St. Joseph Parish, $133,345, is an invitation to share in the common mission of building up the Kingdom of God in south-west Indiana. Together we support ministries that proclaim the Gospel, form future priests, deacons and lay leaders, care for those in need, strengthen our parishes, and accompany individuals and families at every state of life.

Every parish, every family, every person and every gift—no matter the size—becomes a tangible expression of faith and helps bring hope, love, truth and mercy of Christ to others.

I invite you to prayerfully consider how God is calling you to participate in this year's appeal. Thank you for the many ways you witness your faith with generosity and love.

This week we continue reading Pope Leo's letter (encyclical) Magnifica Humanitas: On the protection of the human person in the age of artificial intelligence

THE PRINCIPLE OF SUBSIDIARITY

The principle of subsidiarity applies especially in the context of the digital revolution. Here, the highest level is not the State, but rather major economic and technological actors that exercise de facto power over the conditions of everyday life. This level, which monopolizes expertise, data and decision-making authority, involves companies and platforms that define conditions for access, rules of visibility, forms of interaction, and even economic opportunities. The principle of subsidiarity requires that such processes not be imposed from above in an opaque and unilateral manner, but instead be directed toward the common good with transparency, accountability and meaningful forms of participation (including independent checks, transparency regarding algorithms, equitable access to data and avenues for recourse).

In this context, States and transnational institutions are called to ensure fair rules and effective safeguards, so that local communities, intermediary organizations, schools, universities, religious institutions and associations have a voice and can contribute to the discernment of choices that affect people's daily lives, such as employment, access to services, data management and digital environments. When it comes to decisions regarding economic flows and digital platforms, as well as the governance of data and algorithms, we cannot allow a handful of actors to dictate these processes on their own; instead, we must build forms of cooperation that respect the various levels of the global community and make them jointly responsible for the common good.

THE PRINCIPLE OF SOLIDARITY

Having considered the common good and subsidiarity, I would like to reflect on the principle of solidarity. This emerges from a vision of the human person generated by faith, namely that every human being is created in the image of God and is part of a network of relationships that bind him or her to others, to specific populations and to creation. Saint Paul VI observed that the obligations of solidarity, justice and charity are rooted in the human and supernatural fraternal bonds that unite individuals and populations.

Fraternity is not merely an aspiration of believers, but is a social and political reality to be embodied in communal choices and endeavors. Solidarity, then, is the concrete recognition that the future of each individual is connected to the future of all; indeed, no one is saved alone. The close link between subsidiarity and solidarity thereby becomes evident. When subsidiarity is not linked to solidarity, it ends up becoming merely the protection of particular interests; when solidarity is not supported by subsidiarity, it degenerates into a form of welfare that does not foster responsibility.

This interconnectedness also pertains to the responsibility of authentic participation. Solidarity is expressed when each person, both individually and collectively, takes part in the life of the community — by staying informed, engaging with others, making their voice heard and contributing to public decisions and choices — while also assuming real responsibility so that the common good is achieved through shared decision-making.

In many areas, we are already experiencing a kind of “de facto solidarity,” for our lives are intertwined; digital networks connect people and communities across the world in real time, and global economies and communications mean that events in one place have a far-reaching impact. This network of relationships, however, only constitutes solidarity in the fullest sense of the word when it becomes a conscious choice. Faith invites us to see this reality as a call: we are not merely neighbors to one another, but entrusted to each other, so that each of us may take responsibility, as best we can, for the lives and wounds of our brothers and sisters. Solidarity arises precisely when we decide not to remain indifferent to what happens to our neighbor but instead to transform unavoidable bonds — economic, cultural and technological — into paths of sharing, cooperation and mutual care, embracing the idea of thinking and acting in terms of community.

Solidarity is both a principle and a virtue. As a principle, it expresses the objective order of relationships among individuals, groups and peoples, pointing to an awareness of interdependence whereby the good of each person depends on the good of others. As a virtue, it requires a firm and persevering determination to strive for the common good, with particular attention to those most in need.
