Dear friends,

I heard about a survey recently in which people in our country were asked: "Should we treat each other with dignity." 94% of the people agreed. But then they were asked a second question: "Have you felt treated with dignity?" Only 31% of the people responding said they felt treated that way. That's pretty amazing. For the past several weeks we have been engaged in our 40 Days for Life in which we say that all people are blessed with an inherent dignity from the unborn, to the disabled, to the migrant, to those in prison and on death row. In our country, one of the documents that we hold dear is our Declaration of Independence, in proclaim that all men are created equal. Truth is that we want to live in a world where the dignity of all is upheld. Now, how can we do this?

My prayer for us is that you be blessed even when you do not know what happens next, when you worry about the world we are walking toward. May uncertainty remind you that you still have choices to make. Bless you with courage for the small, faithful thing that is yours to do: to vote, pay attention, tell the truth, care for your neighbors, and keep showing up. Carry what is yours: a responsibility, a neighbor a small corner of this beautiful, terrible world. Bless you when you cannot see far ahead. May you do the next faithful thing, and then the next, until our small acts make a path where none was visible before.

This week I was again thinking about the young Dutch Jewish girl, Etty Hillesum who lived in Amsterdam in the late 1930's and early 1940's. Facing certain death in the face of the German campaign to kill all the Jewish people of Europe, she did not run away from the world but spent her time trying to be supportive of her neighbors. Eventually she was rounded up with other Jewish people and sent to the infamous concentration camp in Auschwitz. Even there she tried to comfort the other inmates. She was eventually murdered by the Nazis in November of 1943.

Even in the face of such horrific circumstances she would write: Ultimately, we have just one moral duty: to reclaim large areas of peace in ourselves, more and more peace, and to reflect it towards others. And the more peace there is in us, the more peace there will be in our troubled world.

So, stop scrolling on facebook and utube. Turn off the news. You will not die because you did not hear the latest "breaking news." And ask yourself, how will I turn away from all the voices that urge me to see others with contempt? How will I choose to see others with dignity?

Leaning into the journey of life,
Fr. Gene Schroeder

In our Catholic Tradition, the month of November is traditionally a time to remember those who have died and gone before us marked with the sign of faith. This year we remember especially these members of our parish who have died since last November.

A PRAYER FOR LEADERSHIP

Give us, O God, leaders whose hearts are large enough to match the breadth of our own souls and give us souls strong enough to follow leaders of vision and wisdom.

Give us the hearts to choose the leader who will work with other leaders to bring safety to the whole world. Give us insight enough ourselves to choose as leaders those who can tell strength from power, growth from greed, leadership from dominance, and real greatness from the trappings of grandiosity.

We trust you, Great God, to open our hearts to learn from those to whom you speak in different tongues and to respect the life and words of those to whom you entrusted the good of other parts of this globe.

We beg you, Great God, give us the vision as a people to know where global leadership truly lies and to pursue it diligently, to require it to protect human rights for everyone everywhere. We ask these things, Great God, with minds open to your word and hearts that trust in your eternal care. Amen.

This week we continue reading Pope Leo's letter (encyclical) Magnifica Humanitas: On the protection of the human person in the age of artificial intelligence

We must avoid the misconception of equating AI "intelligence" with that of human beings. These systems merely imitate certain functions of human intelligence. In doing so, they often surpass human intelligence in speed and computational capacity, offering tangible benefits across many fields. Yet this power remains entirely tied to data processing.

So-called artificial intelligences do not undergo experiences, do not possess a body, do not feel joy or pain, do not mature through relationships and do not know from within what love, work, friendship or responsibility mean. Nor do they have a moral conscience, since they do not judge good and evil, grasp the ultimate meaning of situations, or bear responsibility for consequences. They may imitate language, behavior and analytical skills, or even simulate empathy and understanding, but they do not understand what they produce, for they lack the affective, relational and spiritual perspective through which human beings grow in wisdom. Even when these tools are described as capable of "learning," their way of doing so is different from that of a human person. It is not the experience of those who allow themselves to be shaped by life and grow over time through choices, mistakes, forgiveness and fidelity. Rather, it is a form of statistical adaptation based on data and feedback, which can be very effective, but does not imply inner growth.

A VALUABLE TOOL THAT REQUIRES VIGILANCE

In light of what has been said, we can better understand why AI can be a valuable tool and, at the same time, why it calls for a measured and vigilant approach. In recent years, its private use has expanded significantly, prompting growing reflection on both the opportunities it offers and the risks tied to its rapid spread. In personal use, three aspects in particular deserve careful consideration: the ease with which results are obtained, the impression of objectivity and the simulation of human communication. The speed and simplicity with which information, complex analyses, media content and practical assistance can be accessed undoubtedly makes life easier. Yet they can also encourage excessive reliance and the search for ready-made answers, and weaken personal creativity and judgment.

The apparent objectivity of the responses and suggestions these systems provide can lead us to overlook the fact that they reflect the cultural assumptions of those who designed and trained them, with all their strengths and limitations. The artificial imitation of positive human communication – words of advice, empathy, friendship and even love – can be engaging and at times genuinely helpful. However, for less discerning users, it can also be misleading, creating the illusion of a relationship with a real personal subject. The artificial imitation of care or support can become particularly risky when it enters contexts where real relationships and emotional bonds are lacking. Here, the danger is not so much that a person may believe they are communicating with another person, but rather that they may gradually lose the very desire to form genuine human connections.

Broadening our perspective to the use of AI in society, we see that it is now embedded in decision-making processes across many sectors and at multiple levels. The gains in efficiency and the potential to improve certain services are clear, yet rapidly and uncritically adopting them exposes us to a range of risks, including the tendency to overlook the environmental impact. Current AI systems require enormous amounts of energy and water, significantly influencing carbon dioxide emissions, and place heavy demands on natural resources. As their complexity increases, especially in the case of large language models, the need for computing power and storage capacity grows too, which requires an extensive network of machines, cables, data centers and energy-intensive infrastructure. For this reason, it is essential to develop more sustainable technological solutions that reduce environmental impact and help protect our common home.

RESPONSIBILITY, TRANSPARENCY AND THE GOVERNANCE OF AI

The use of AI is never a purely technical matter: when it enters processes that affect people's lives, it touches on rights, opportunities, status and freedom. Important and sensitive decisions – concerning employment, credit, access to public services or even a person's reputation – risk being fully delegated to automated systems that do not know compassion, mercy, forgiveness, and above all, the hope that people are able to change, and can therefore give rise to new forms of exclusion. There are clearly harmful uses, such as the manipulation of information or violations of privacy. Yet there is also a subtler danger, for when AI systems present themselves as neutral and objective, they end up reflecting and reinforcing the stereotypes or ideological bias of their designers and developers. TO BE CONTINUED
