REFLECTION

By Fr. Rich Jasper - September 20, 2026

Twenty-Fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Teach Your Children Well ...

Teaching is tough these days. Headlines repeatedly tell us there is a teacher shortage across the nation, affecting virtually every school – public, private and Catholic. Some schools are still seeking teachers, three or more weeks into the academic year. One teacher friend of mine, having taught in the same Catholic school since the early 1990s, recently made this observation: “Teaching is a labor of love, and it involves a lot of hidden sacrifice. No one wants to do that anymore.”

To live a life of hidden sacrifice -- that's really the Christian call in every walk of life. Parents do it every day. Priests and religious are called to the same heroic sacrifice, as are members of the military and first responders. We know it when we see it lived-out humbly and without fanfare, and we admire the dedication that one person has to helping others, especially the most vulnerable among us.

This is why we must up our game when it comes to praying for and supporting those who give their lives to educating our young people, especially when it comes to passing along our faith.

This weekend we celebrate Catechetical Sunday, a time to recognize the women and men who dedicate their lives to shaping young minds and hearts in the ways of Christ and His Church. Quite often, these teachers and religious education volunteers may very well be the only people outside a student's immediate family who talk to them about Jesus; they may be the only adults who ever share with them the Gospel message of mercy, forgiveness and truth.

In a special way today, I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mrs. Vickie Eichler, our director of religious education at Immaculate Conception, and Mrs. Isabela Geremia, our parish social media coordinator, for the countless ways they work to reach our young people with the love of Christ. They, along with a wonderful group of Life Teen, EDGE, youth group and Summer Academy catechists and volunteers, are making a beautiful difference in our parish community. They aren't afraid to try new ways to share the faith with an increasingly-busy younger generation. To them – and to all the teachers who have had a profound impact in our lives – we thank God for their many hidden sacrifices.

As it is said: To teach is to touch a life forever. How blessed we are to have such wonderful catechists at Immaculate Conception/St. Jude. If you feel called to help this vital ministry in any way, please email Vickie (or see Fr. Rich) for more information.
