Gospel Reflection

Key Themes from the Gospel

God's invitation is extravagant and universal. Jesus compares the kingdom to a king who prepares a lavish wedding banquet and invites everyone good and bad alike. The tragedy is not hatred of God, but distraction. The invited guests decline because they are "busy" the farm, the business, the ordinary tasks that quietly edge out God. Grace requires transformation.

The wedding garment symbolizes the change God offers; refusing it is refusing to be shaped by grace. God widens the door. When the comfortable decline, God invites those on the margins the hungry, the overlooked, the ones who know their need.

This Sunday confronts us with a gentle but urgent question: What keeps me from God's feast?

Not usually sin in its dramatic forms, but the quiet drift of daily life tasks, screens, routines, worries. The Gospel warns that we can miss the banquet simply by being too busy to notice the invitation.

Offering Prayer

"Father, clothe me daily in the grace of repentance, so that I take nothing for granted at the table You have prepared. Keep me alert and ready to respond to Your call, Amen."
