The Clinic now offering Urology care in Ada

ADA – In an ongoing effort to expand care for patients, The Clinic has added Urology to its growing list of local healthcare services.

Urology services will be available August 11 at The Clinic's "Colony B" office, located at 905 Colony Drive in Ada. The office is staffed by Kacie Wilkin and Haley Perez, Certified Physician Assistants, specializing in Urology. Dr. Glen Diacon, a longtime Ada-based Urologist, will also see patients in The Clinic's office.

"We are determined to find ways to meet patient needs," said Kailey Wellington, MLS-HL, Executive Vice President of Compliance and Administration at The Clinic. "We understand that, at times, people have to leave town for certain kinds of care, which involves the burdens of longer wait times and travel expenses. Our goal is to provide these services at home. Adding the Urology service line is another critical step in The Clinic's mission to meet patients where they live, offering convenience and top-notch care."

Perez, PA-C, brings six years of experience in Urology to The Clinic. Wilkin, PA-C, is now in her fifth year in the Urology field. Together with Dr. Diacon's 35-plus years of experience, patients can expect high-quality Urology care that rivals anything found in a metropolitan area.

"Proactive urologic care plays an important role in maintaining overall health at every stage of life," Wilkin said. "More often than not, urologic conditions can be indicators of other underlying health issues. Addressing concerns such as recurrent urinary tract infections, incontinence, benign prostatic hyperplasia, erectile dysfunction, or other urologic conditions not only improves quality of life but can also lead to earlier detection and treatment of more serious medical problems."
