

Officially Fall (9/27/25)

For some people (north of the equator) autumn begins on the first day of September, or on the first day of the new school year, or (in America) at the end of Labor Day Weekend. But if you want to be exact (as we always do around here), it begins at the moment of an astronomical event that occurred last Monday, September 22, when the sun aligned with the Earth's equator, a time known as the equinox. So it's official. This is our first show of fall (or autumn, if you prefer), according to all to all the various criteria. May it be a good season for you.
