“Our residents don’t live in our workplace; we work in their home”

The ATC program on Groote Eylandt is in development and will become a 32-bed facility that offers a tailored residential program of 6-months for Aboriginal men who have experienced or are at risk of experiencing interactions with the justice system.

This program is developed and led with a cultural lens, in partnership with the Anindilyakwa Land Council & the Aboriginal Justice Unit (Northern Territory Government).

The program provides access to employment and training opportunities as well as tailored rehabilitation and therapeutic programs to target risk factors, to ensure and support men to not have any further negative contact with the criminal justice system.

Eligibility Criteria:

- Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander
- Male
- 18 years or older
- Must be a resident of the Northern Territory
- Must have cultural connection to Groote Eylandt, as confirmed by representatives of the Community Justice Group.
- Involvement or risk of involvement with the Justice system
