

The Happiness of Balance: Without Darkness we would not know Light

Only when there is darkness can we see the stars. If we did not experience sadness, we would not understand joy. If we did not experience loss we would be unable to appreciate what we have. If we did not know fear we would not know what it means to feel safe. All of our experiences are valuable and necessary for us to be truly happy.

www.rhianonroseceramics.com

