Diaconal Dan's Deliberation

Friends.

Did you know that your hospital file can include information about the church or faith community you are connected with?

When you are admitted to hospital, there are many questions asked, and one of them may be about which church or faith community you attend. Sometimes, with everything else happening during an admission, this question can be missed. But sharing that you are connected with Port Elgin United Church can be helpful, especially if you would like pastoral care while you are in hospital.

Brightshores Health System has Spiritual Care Providers who are part of the healthcare team. They offer support to patients and families through conversation, prayer, reflection, or simply being present during difficult or uncertain times. Spiritual Care can also help connect patients with their own faith community and local pastor when that support is wanted.

This is one reason it is worthwhile to make sure the church listed in your hospital file is correct and up to date. If you have moved, changed churches, or are unsure what is listed, you can ask hospital staff to check or update that information.

And, of course, you or a family member can always contact me or the church directly when you are in hospital and would appreciate a visit, a phone call, or simply knowing that your church community is holding you in prayer.

Hospital stays can be unexpected and sometimes overwhelming. Having our church connection recorded is one small way of helping make sure that, when we need the support of our faith community, those connections are a little easier to make.

It is one more way we can remain connected and care for one another, especially in those moments when a familiar face, a prayer, or simply someone sitting alongside us can mean a great deal.

Peace be with you,
Rev Dan
