ELEVENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

The calling of St. Matthew, is at the heart of the experience of coming to faith in a deeply personal encounter with God's forgiveness and unconditional love. He has 'loved', 'justified', 'reconciled', 'saved' and made us holy. One who is called out be a disciple of Jesus is always expected to respond to this personal experience of God's love.

Now we are 'sent out' to become a messianic community, a renewed Israel founded on the community of the Twelve Apostles.

Today's Gospel narrative of sending out the Twelve on mission adds a further layer of meaning to discipleship.

St. Matthew carefully selects his words to parallel his descriptions of the ministry of Jesus in order to direct his disciples to do virtually the same things and to proclaim the same message that he does.

The Church with the community of disciples must be about a mission and ministry that are virtually identical with that of Jesus.

The mandate that Jesus gives to the Twelve follows Matthew's description of Jesus' own ministry: proclaim the kingdom, cure the sick, drive out demons, and so forth.

This mandate to the apostles, their contemporaries, the disciples (and to us), is about how the church must model its life on the example of the Master.

UNDÉCIMO DOMINGO DEL TIEMPO ORDINARIO

Como miramos la historia del llamado de san Mateo, la experiencia de fe y el encuentro personal con el poder de Dios y el amor incondicional, el nos da cuenta como él ha sido 'amado', 'justificado', 'reconciliado' y 'salvado', y nos santifica a nosotros.

Una vez que somos llamados a ser discípulos de Jesús, estamos siempre esperan a responder a esta experiencia personal del amor de Dios.

Ahora que somos enviados a formar una comunidad mesiánica - mensajera, un Israel renovado, fundado igual con los doce apóstoles.

Hoy el evangelio narra la misión de los doce apóstoles profundizando el sentido de nuestro llamado discipulado: realizar las mismas obras, proclamar el mismo evangelio y seguir lo, para la gloria de Dios Padre celestial.

La iglesia formada en la comunidad de la fe debe que tener la misma misión identificada en señor Jesús.

El mandato que Jesús le da a los Doce sigue la propia descripción del ministerio de Jesús, proclamar la buena nueva del reino de Dios, sanar los enfermos, sacar demonios y mucho más.

Esto fue el mandato para los Apóstoles y a todos que sigue al Señor. La Iglesia debe ser un modelo de vida y ejemplo como el de maestro.
