FULL DAY SESSIONS – IN PERSON:

1) BEADED POPPIES

Laura Moar, Indigenous Academic Achievement Support Worker, Brandon School Division

In this session, we will be beading a poppy which includes edging and making a brooch so you can wear it.

BIO:

Laura has worked as an IAA Support worker for six years. During this time, she learned to bead from knowledge keepers and now shares those skills with students and staff in the Brandon School Division. She enjoys beading as a pastime and values how each project helps build skill and deepen understanding of the process.

Suitable for All Educators

9:00 a.m. – 3:30 p.m.

(Maximum number of participants 25)

COST: $80.00 until September 18th/$90.00 after September 18th

LOCATION: Library - École Secondaire Neelin High School
1020 Brandon Avenue, Brandon, MB

2) EXPRESSIVE ART EXPLORATION OF THE IMPACTS OF AI ON TEACHING AND LEARNING

Tara Leach, Teacher, Brandon School Division

Explore how expressive art can provide balance and enlightenment as we come to terms with AI's impact on teaching and learning. In a safe and supportive space, we will express our thoughts and feelings about our personal AI journeys and take part in a guided expressive art experience involving two modes of art-making and, through a closing conversation in circle, we will share our discoveries. My hope is that through this time spent in creative community, we will combat the loneliness and overwhelm that can come with being "left to our own devices," and make supportive connections with each other to sustain us going forward. This is a full day experience, with a $10 fee for art supplies. No previous art experience needed. Suitable for teachers of any grade level.

BIO:

Tara Leach (she/her) lives, works, and creates on Treaty 2 territory, in Brandon School Division. As a high school teacher, expressive arts practitioner, exhibiting artist, and active contributor to the theatre community, she has been encouraging young people to find their creative voices through the visual, literary, and performing arts for twenty-five years. Tara is committed to inclusive teaching practices, soft heartedness, and empowering all learners to envision and achieve the Good Life.

Suitable for teachers of any grade level.

9:00 a.m. – 3:30 p.m.

3) RIBBON SKIRT MAKING

Deborah Tacan

Gain understanding of ribbon skirts and variations in styles (traditional and modern). Learn how to measure, cut and sew a simple ribbon skirt.

BIO:

Deborah Tacan is a Cree/Métis woman from northern Manitoba. Deborah has worked in areas of childcare, mental health, and substance use; as well as most recently as a cultural support worker for the Brandon Friendship Centre. Deborah has been actively supporting the Brandon community for many years. She currently spends time organizing and supporting community gatherings and at schools giving cultural teachings and understandings. She is a dedicated mother and grandmother. Deborah carries many traditional skills such as making moccasins, willow baskets, dream catchers, beading, ribbon skirts and many other things using the natural materials from Mother Earth.

A list noting all materials required for the ribbon skirt will be forwarded to registered participants prior to the LIFT Conference. Supplies will not be provided.

LOCATION: Human Ecology Room – Riverheights School
32 E. Fotheringham Drive, Brandon, MB

4) CANVA FOR BEGINNERS

Angela Jarosz, Teacher, Brandon School Division

Teachers will have an opportunity to come, set up a Canva account (if they have not yet) and learn some of the tools, options and how to create quick and easy resources, documents and posts for SeeSaw or parent emails, etc. The possibilities are endless. This is set up for those who have never used Canva, are just beginning or needing to switch from Publisher as it gets discontinued. There will be time in the afternoon to create, and trouble shoot with support as teachers get started.

Participants need to bring their personal device (laptop/tablet) and a screenshot of the top of their paystub showing their division and that they are a teacher. No personal info needed beyond name, division and title.

BIO:

Angela is an Early Years teacher who has worked with the Brandon School Division for over 11 years after relocating from Saskatchewan. Throughout her career, she has primarily taught Kindergarten to Grade 2 and has also worked in Reading Recovery. Angela is a mom to three kids (18, 16 & 12) and wife of a railroader, so time is not something she has a lot of! Angela enjoys creating for school and home and appreciates being able to quickly create the things she needs.

HALF DAY SESSIONS – REPEAT (A.M. & P.M.) - IN PERSON:

8) WELLNESS STRATEGIES FOR HELPING PROFESSIONALS

Jocelyne Lalonde, M.Sc., PHEC, Crisis & Trauma Resource Institute

In many organizations it is common to find employees suffering from the adverse effects of stress. In the helping field, there are additional factors related to the nature of supporting people that can contribute to compassion fatigue or secondary trauma symptoms. Left unmanaged, stress can lead to unproductive patterns and result in loss of focus, motivation, and productivity. This workshop will help participants identify personal stress factors and introduce them to practical methods for successfully managing stress. Participants will have the opportunity to develop a personalized plan to repair negative effects of stress as well as accelerate their resilience.

BIO:

Jocelyne Lalonde is a proud franco-manitobaine and a Certified Motivational Interviewer with a master's degree in Family Social Science and an Honours Bachelor's degree in Sociology. She has over 15 years of experience working with youth, families, and adults in community, government, and school settings. Jocelyne's expertise and passion center around addiction, other mental health concerns, and wellness. Most recently, she has enjoyed teaching at the post-secondary level, where her research has focused on the experiences of youth in and from the child welfare system. As an enthusiastic lifelong learner, Jocelyne meaningfully acknowledges that there are many valuable ways of understanding ourselves and the world around us. She believes in the importance of walking respectfully alongside others and taking a strengths-based approach to providing support that focuses on each person's innate ability to create a more peaceful life. Jocelyne is passionate about creating genuine connections with others and believes that this is the first step to a better life and, ultimately, to a better world.

9) BIN THERE, DONE THAT: THE REAL DIRT ON WASTE RECLAMATION

Kat Hunkin, Teacher

Most of the things we throw away can be reused, recycled, composted, or repurposed. In Manitoba, waste accounts for ~10% of our greenhouse gas emissions every year. Plastic pollution has reached a crisis level worldwide. Tackling these issues starts right in your homes and in our schools and is one of the easiest and most impactful changes that every person can make to fight climate change and consume sustainably. Learn about the options right here in Brandon for sorting and reducing your waste, take a crash course in how to recycle and compost effectively, and find out how to get your schools and students involved in making sustainable and mindful choices about what happens to the waste they produce.

BIO:

Kat Hunkin is a passionate advocate for the environment. She has lived most of her life on the west coast working as a marine ecology researcher, ecotour guide, and youth environmental science mentor. She has learned that one of the most impactful ways to change our society's views on climate, science, and the importance of the environment is by involving youth and the people that nurture and empower them.

Somehow (long story), she ended up as a math teacher in Brandon, Manitoba. She is a science communicator, climate activist, mindful consumer, and avid cook and gardener.

HALF DAY SESSIONS – A.M. ONLY – IN PERSON:

19) FINANCIAL FOUNDATIONS FOR MANITOBA TEACHERS: A SEMINAR ON PENSION BASICS, INVESTING AND LONG-TERM PLANNING

Jennifer McMillian, Consultant

This session takes a holistic and human approach to financial planning. We will connect the dots between current investment decisions and your retirement sources of income. We will cover the advantages of various investment registrations and navigating risk. Lastly, we will answer frequently asked questions related to tax and investing, plus see how a fictional “mock teacher profile” might plan for long-term financial success. This seminar is designed specifically for educators and reflects the financial landscape teachers commonly experience through their career. No prior financial planning knowledge is required, and the session is applicable to teachers in all stages of their career.

BIO:

For the past 10 years, Jennifer co-owned and operated a small business with her husband. That experience shaped how she works today – Jennifer understands firsthand the pressures, risks, and tough decisions that individuals, families, and business owners face. It also taught her the value of planning, adaptability, and having trusted guidance along the way. As a consultant at IG Wealth Management, Jennifer takes a down-to-earth, relationship-focused approach. Jennifer partners with clients to build financial plans that fit their real lives - their families, values, and long-term goals. Whether you’re growing a business, planning for retirement, or simply wanting more clarity and confidence in your financial world, Jennifer is here to support you with practical advice and a friendly family-oriented experience.

20) STARTING EARLY: PRACTICAL ANTI-RACISM STRATEGIES FOR K–6 TEACHERS

Dr. Michelle Lam, Associate Professor & Canada Research Chair, Brandon University

A student repeats something they heard at home about some groups of people getting “special treatment.” Or tells a classmate they can’t be the princess because their skin is too dark. What do you say? What do you do next? Moments like these happen when we least expect, but we want to be prepared to respond in ways that are thoughtful, educational, and developmentally appropriate. This highly practical session is designed for K–6 classroom teachers who are looking for concrete strategies and tools to create anti-racist learning environments and to respond to moments when racism appears. This session will explore both curriculum and pedagogy, aimed at sharing ready-to-use resources, strategies, and tools so that all students can feel respected, represented, safe and valued.

BIO:

Dr. Michelle Lam is a Canada Research Chair in Rural Community-Based Education for Reconciliation. She is a faculty member in the Curriculum and Pedagogy Department at Brandon University and former Director of the Centre for Applied Research and Education in Indigenous, Rural, and Remote settings (BU CARES). 23) BASIC PRINCIPLES OF DECOLONIZATION

Doug Pople, Brandon University

This session will explore and define the concept of decolonization and reconciliation, both from an Indigenous and non-Indigenous perspective. Both terms are used extensively yet do we understand what they mean and the actions involved in working towards them? Decolonization takes on many facets including economic, cultural and educational and this session will look at how decolonization is or can be operationalized in each of these areas. This session will also explore steps and actions that move the concept of decolonization from performative to actual meaningful change. Specifically, sharing tools and techniques to assist non-Indigenous individuals to feel comfortable engaging in this vital and meaningful change. Time will be spent examining the TRW 94 Calls to Actions, and if and how they impact decolonization. This session will provide a step-by-step guide on how to establish an atmosphere of trust and engagement and create meaningful actions.

24) DIGGING DEEPER: PRACTICAL ANTI-RACISM STRATEGIES FOR 7-12 TEACHERS

Dr. Michelle Lam, Associate Professor & Canada Research Chair, Brandon University

A student casually uses the N-word. Another claims that “everyone is just too sensitive” during your lesson on residential schools. What do you say? What do you do next? Secondary classrooms are spaces where conversations about race, identity, and larger social structures deepen. This highly practical session is designed for Grades 7–12 classroom teachers seeking strategies and tools to create anti-racist learning environments and to respond effectively when racism arises. Teachers will leave with ready-to-use strategies and tools to support meaningful dialogue, promote equity, and ensure all students feel respected, represented, safe, and valued in their learning spaces.

BIO:

Dr. Michelle Lam is a Canada Research Chair in Rural Community-Based Education for Reconciliation. She is a faculty member in the Curriculum and Pedagogy Department at Brandon University and former Director of the Centre for Applied Research and Education in Indigenous, Rural, and Remote settings (BU CARES). 29) BAKE MY DAY

Des Tucker, Educator, Brandon School Division

Step away from the lesson plans and into the kitchen for a half-day virtual PD designed just for educators who need a moment to breathe, create, and reset. In this relaxed, immersive session, you'll bake 3–4 delicious treats from the comfort of your own kitchen. No pressure. No perfection required. Just simple, satisfying recipes and a calm, welcoming atmosphere where you can slow down and focus on something joyful. This experience is designed for all skill levels — whether you've been baking for years or rarely turn on the oven. Each recipe is approachable, clearly guided, and made with everyday ingredients. You'll leave with: - a handful of tasty, homemade treats - easy-to-follow recipes you can make again anytime - practical baking tips and confidence in the kitchen - a sense of calm and accomplishment. More than just a baking session, this is intentional time for you — to unplug and be present in a low-stress environment. Come as you are, apron optional.

A list of supplies and recipes will be emailed to participants prior to the session.

BIO:

I'm a mom, a wife, and a support teacher who truly loves bringing joy to others — especially through baking. I've been teaching in the Brandon School Division for 14 years. While my heart will always be in the early years classroom, I now work as a support teacher, where I continue to care deeply about helping students (and colleagues!) feel supported and successful. I don't have any formal training in baking — just years of experience learning alongside my mom in the kitchen. Some of my most cherished memories are tied to food, especially baked goods made and shared with the people I love. For me, baking isn't about perfection; it's about comfort, connection, and creating moments that bring people together. I'm so excited to share that joy with you.

30) VICARIOUS TRAUMA

John Koop Harder, MSW, RSW, Facilitator, Crisis & Trauma Resource Institute

Helpers regularly encounter stories and symptoms of trauma in their roles. There is growing evidence that the impact of directly supporting others through experiences of trauma goes beyond burnout or fatigue. The toll of witnessing intense human experiences and emotions can contribute to a negative transformation of a helper's own sense of safety, and of being competent and purposeful. This workshop will provide participants with the opportunity to examine their own experiences and become aware of the signs of both vicarious trauma and vicarious growth. Participants will have the opportunity to develop a personalized plan to repair negative effects as well as accelerate their resilience.

BIO:

John has been working as a therapist and trainer for over 20 years. He is a Registered Social Worker who holds a Master of Social Work degree. John is a contributing author of our Counselling Insights and Counselling in Relationships books. Much of John's career has centred on working with children, youth, adults, and families dealing with crisis and trauma. While he has a diverse practice, he has particular interest and specialized experience in working with individuals and families impacted by mental health concerns, violence, post-war trauma recovery, gender/sexuality issues, and sexual abuse recovery. John's work is also informed by his international experiences working with individuals and communities impacted by civil war and ethnic conflicts in Colombia, Albania, and Northern Ireland. John believes people are their own best experts and already have many of the skills, abilities, and competencies that will assist them to address the challenges influencing their lives. John is a warm and engaging facilitator who values interactive learning experiences.

31) ANXIETY IN CHILDREN AND YOUTH

Nicole Deagle, MSW, RSW, Facilitator, Crisis & Trauma Resource Institute

Childhood and adolescence are critical times for emotional and psychological development. During these stages, anxiety patterns can begin that continue into adulthood. Anxiety represents our body's natural alarm system, signalling the possibility of danger. When this response arises too frequently or intensely and doesn't match actual situations of danger, it can interfere with life and cause great distress. Having caregivers who are equipped to support and teach children and youth skills for managing and interrupting their anxiety patterns is crucial for early intervention. This workshop will provide a structure for understanding how anxiety works in the nervous system. Participants will also learn a diverse range of skills that can be taught and practiced with children and youth. These skills are designed to decrease anxiety and expand the capacity for managing emotions and anxious thought patterns.

BIO:

Nicole is a bilingual Registered Social Worker (French and English), who holds a Master of Social Work degree. She also has additional certifications in areas related to trauma and loss, suicide prevention and intervention, violence and threat risk assessment, and nonviolent crisis intervention. Her professional experience includes direct clinical practice with children and youth in individual and group settings; systemic work targeting organizational change, crisis intervention, mental health training, post secondary education in the social services field, service coordination, and clinical supervision.

In addition to her work with CTRI, Nicole works for an organization where she provides clinical supervision to a large, diverse team that offers a range of social services to children and youth. She is committed to lifelong learning and believes that there is always something to learn and room to grow. As a trainer, Nicole creates a supportive and safe learning environment grounded in respect and compassion for all learners. She draws on her passion and experience to provide trainings that are engaging, positive, and memorable.

32) ADVERSE CHILDHOOD EXPERIENCES

Jennifer Slay, MSW, RSW, Facilitator, Crisis & Trauma Resource Institute

Helping children work through adverse childhood experiences (ACEs) is difficult but important work because they can have lifelong effects on mental, physical, and relationship health. This workshop provides a deeper understanding of trauma's effects on a child's brain and teaches practical strategies for supporting children and their caregivers. You will discover how to identify ACEs, recognize their signs and symptoms, and learn preventative strategies for counteracting their negative effects. This workshop explores common ACEs, attachment theory, and strategies for supporting children and their caregivers. Join us and equip yourself with the tools you need to make a positive impact on the lives of children and families affected by ACEs.

BIO:

Jennifer is a Registered Social Worker who has nearly two decades of experience working in the child welfare system as a social worker, trainer, and manager. She now operates her own psychotherapy practice where she primarily works with women experiencing feelings of depression and anxiety. Jennifer has a passion for supporting people to overcome their fears and reach their full potential. Using a combination of CBT, positive psychology, and mindfulness, she provides her clients with the tools and strategies they need to empower themselves and become more confident. Jennifer believes in the power and importance of communication and feels it is a vital tool in effective relationships with yourself and others. As a facilitator, Jennifer is energetic and engaging, often using humour to support learning.

33) STRATEGIES FOR WORKING WITH STUDENTS WITH EXECUTIVE FUNCTIONING CHALLENGES

Dr. Pamela Kelso, School Psychologist, Brandon School Division

Executive functioning skills—such as planning, organization, working memory, task initiation, and self-regulation—play a critical role in students’ academic success and daily functioning in the classroom. Students who experience executive functioning challenges may struggle with completing assignments, managing time, staying organized, or regulating their attention and behaviour. This session will provide educators with practical, classroom-based strategies to support students with executive functioning difficulties. Participants will explore ways to scaffold tasks, teach organizational and planning skills, use visual supports and structured routines, and implement strategies that promote independence and self-regulation. The session will also discuss how executive functioning challenges may present in students and how proactive supports can help reduce frustration while improving engagement and learning outcomes.

BIO:

Pamela Kelso, PhD, currently works as a School Psychologist in the Brandon School Division and as a Sessional Instructor in the Department of Education/Inclusive Education at Brandon University. She obtained her Bachelor of Arts Degree (Psychology) from Brandon University in 2002, Master of Arts Degree (Clinical Psychology) from North Dakota State University in 2004, and PhD (Clinical Psychology) from the University of Manitoba in 2012. 34) PLANNING FOR THINKING: AUTHENTIC LEARNING & MB'S GLOBAL COMPETENCIES IN THE AGE OF AI

Shawna Philpott, Director of Field Experience, Brandon University

Dr. Gustavo Moura, Director of BU CARES, Brandon University

Artificial intelligence is rapidly reshaping how students access information and complete learning tasks, raising important ethical considerations for educators. Questions of bias, authorship, privacy, and responsible use require thoughtful guidance so that students learn when and how AI can enhance learning and when its use may limit their capacity to think critically. This session explores how educators can move beyond detecting AI use and instead design learning experiences that assume these tools are part of students' environments. Participants will look at ways to encourage critical thinking in their classrooms, develop AI literacies, design rich learning experiences for our students, and create authentic assessments that put students in charge of their own learning. Throughout the session, Manitoba's Global Competencies will be woven into instructional planning to strengthen communication, critical thinking, collaboration, and responsible decision-making in an AI-enabled world.

BIO:

Shawna Philpott is the Director of Field Experience in the Faculty of Education at Brandon University, where she supports practicum partnerships, mentor teacher development, and field experiences connecting teacher candidates with schools across rural and urban communities. She previously taught in middle years classrooms and has held instructional leadership roles supporting teachers in the integration of technology and innovative teaching practices. Shawna is currently a doctoral student in Educational Leadership at the University of Windsor, where her research focuses on ethical leadership, artificial intelligence in education, and the policy challenges associated with emerging technologies in schools and post-secondary institutions.

Dr. Gustavo Moura is the Director of the BU CARES Research Centre in the Faculty of Education at Brandon University. His research examines the intersections of identity, technology, and social justice in teacher education, with a focus on transforming educational systems to better support marginalized communities, including queer, immigrant, refugee, Indigenous, and rural populations. Dr. Moura has led national and international research initiatives that translate transdisciplinary scholarship into practical strategies for inclusive education, community engagement, and curriculum development. His work emphasizes collaborative, community-based research that bridges academic insight with meaningful impact in educational policy and practice.

36) BROADENING THE CONVERSATION: CRITICAL QUESTIONS AMIDST NARROWING VIEWS OF LITERACY INSTRUCTION

Dr. Joe Stouffer, Associate Professor, Brandon University

Kathie Sutherland, Recovery Teacher Leader, Brandon School Division

In a repeat of their 2025 session, Dr. Joe Stouffer and Kathie Sutherland invite classroom teachers, literacy support personnel, and school leadership into the ongoing conversations around literacy instruction. Drawing from their 2026 publication, the presenters offer essential questions for school teams to consider when navigating the current tumultuous climate, clarify terminology, and unpack the debates in supporting all children's learning to read and write.

BIO:

Dr. Joe Stouffer holds a PhD in Language and Literacy Education and is an Associate Professor in the Department of Curriculum and Pedagogy. He currently chairs the Undergraduate Education Committee at Brandon University. A former classroom teacher, Reading Recovery Teacher Leader, and literacy consultant, he is also the recipient of the 2022 Brandon University Senate Award for Excellence in Teaching. His research interests include formative reading and writing assessment and early literacy theory and pedagogies. Kathie Sutherland holds Master degrees in Inclusive Education, Curriculum and Pedagogy, and Educational Administration and has taught as a sessional instructor in the Faculty of Education at Brandon University. 38) FINANCIAL FOUNDATIONS FOR MANITOBA TEACHERS: A SEMINAR ON PENSION BASICS, INVESTING AND LONG-TERM PLANNING

Jennifer McMillian, Consultant

This session takes a holistic and human approach to financial planning. We will connect the dots between current investment decisions and your retirement sources of income. We will cover the advantages of various investment registrations and navigating risk. Lastly, we will answer frequently asked questions related to tax and investing, plus see how a fictional “mock teacher profile” might plan for long-term financial success. This seminar is designed specifically for educators and reflects the financial landscape teachers commonly experience through their career. No prior financial planning knowledge is required, and the session is applicable to teachers in all stages of their career.

BIO:

For the past 10 years, Jennifer co-owned and operated a small business with her husband. That experience shaped how she works today – Jennifer understands firsthand the pressures, risks, and tough decisions that individuals, families, and business owners face. It also taught her the value of planning, adaptability, and having trusted guidance along the way. As a consultant at IG Wealth Management, Jennifer takes a down-to-earth, relationship-focused approach. Jennifer partners with clients to build financial plans that fit their real lives - their families, values, and long-term goals. Whether you're growing a business, planning for retirement, or simply wanting more clarity and confidence in your financial world, Jennifer is here to support you with practical advice and a friendly family-oriented experience.

39) POSITIVE BEHAVIOUR STRATEGIES FOR EDUCATORS

Dr. Pamela Kelso, School Psychologist, Brandon School Division

Creating positive, productive learning environments begins with promoting and reinforcing appropriate student behaviour. This session will explore practical, evidence-informed strategies educators can use to increase positive behaviours in the classroom and reduce disruptive or challenging behaviours. Participants will learn how proactive classroom practices, clear expectations, positive reinforcement, and relationship-based approaches can support students' social, emotional, and academic development. The session will also highlight ways educators can foster inclusive and supportive classroom climates that encourage engagement, self-regulation, and success for all learners.
