The Spirit of Christmas

Christmas is upon us once again. One of my favorite stories happens to be a Christmas tale. It's one that most of you are probably familiar with - it's "A Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens. I like the story because it captures very well the essence of what Christmas is supposed to be about and, in many ways, expresses the true meaning of Christmas.

The main character, Ebeneezer Scrooge, begins the story as an embittered and lonely old man who has no use for other people. He has accumulated a lot of wealth, but he doesn't do anything with it. All the money he has brings him no joy in life. Then, on Christmas Eve, through the intervention of three spirits, Scrooge becomes a changed man.

The Ghost of Christmas Past takes Scrooge back to a time when he was a vital and idealistic young man. He puts Scrooge in touch, once again, with the person he used to be and with some people, now gone, who made him happy.

The Ghost of Christmas Present puts him in touch with the poverty and suffering of his fellow man. But, it also shows him that material poverty does not necessarily result in spiritual poverty. Scrooge is taken to the home of his employee, Bob Cratchit, with his large family. He sees that, in spite of the fact that they have very little in the way of material wealth, they are a loving family filled with the hope and joy of Christmas.

The Ghost of Christmas Yet To Come shows Scrooge what people really think of him and what will happen if he does not change his ways.

As a result of all this, Scrooge experiences a true conversion – a true change of heart. He lives the rest of his days reaching out to others and ends them as one who is well loved by those who knew him.

It's a very heart-warming story. But, more than that – it's a great metaphor for the true meaning of Christmas; a great example of the reason why God became a human being, came to Earth, and walked among us.

The real spirit of Christmas involves primarily two things. First, there is the gift – the great gift that God gave us on that first Christmas Day – the gift of himself. St. John says this in the opening to his Gospel: "And the Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us." The Creator becoming one of His creations; humbling himself, making himself subject to His creation. Why? Because He loves us; because He wanted to give us hope for our own future by telling us of His plans for us and because He wanted to personally show us the way to that future.

The second aspect of the spirit of Christmas is the idea of transformation and conversion of heart. God does not simply seek to dwell with us; He wants to dwell within us. He has offered Himself to us as a gift. He wants us to accept that gift by receiving Him within our hearts. And, in doing so, to experience true conversion. That means seeking a relationship with him and making that relationship the number one priority in our lives; living our lives as true disciples of Jesus Christ.

That's not an easy thing to do. It means opening ourselves to God's word through prayer, self-examination and meditation. And, once having heard that word, it takes trust, humility, and self-discipline to live our lives in obedience to it.

But, for those who do, he holds out another great gift – the hope of eternal life and happiness with him.

That's why I like Charles Dickens' tale – because that's what happened to Scrooge. The three spirits offered him a gift. He accepted that gift, and in doing so, experienced a conversion of heart that made him a changed man. He was renewed. That renewal brought great joy to him and those around him.

That's what the coming of Jesus Christ should mean to us, as well. If we would only take him to heart, then we, too, will be converted; we, too, will be renewed. We, too, will experience the great joy, both in this life and the next, that renewal will bring.

And, so, this Christmas, I encourage you to reflect on that as you go forward and especially in the new year. Consider -- Have you really accepted the gift that God has offered you? Have you truly received Jesus to dwell in your heart? Are you genuinely open to living your life as his disciple? Are you ready to join him in living the great mystery of our Catholic faith?

It's why he came to us. The Word of God has been borne as human flesh and blood. A wise man once said: "What use is it to us if Christ be borne in Bethlehem, but not in our own hearts?"

Christ came to transform the world. That was the reason for the first Christmas. I encourage you to receive him into your heart this Christmas and let him transform you and experience the real joy of Christmas, as it was meant to be experienced, all year long.

Merry Christmas!

Deacon Dick

FAMILY LOVE: VOCATION AND PATH TO HOLINESS PRAYER

Heavenly Father,

We come before You to praise You and to thank You for the great gift of the family.

We pray to You for all families consecrated by the Sacrament of Matrimony. May they rediscover each day the graces they have received, and as small domestic churches, may they know how to witness to Your presence and to the love with which Christ loves the Church.

We pray to You for all families faced with difficulty and suffering caused by illness or circumstances of which only You know. Sustain them and make them aware of the path to holiness upon which You call them, so that they might experience Your infinite mercy and find new ways to grow in love.

We pray to You for children and young people. May they encounter You and respond joyfully to the vocation You have in mind for them. We pray for their parents and grandparents. May they be aware that they are signs of the fatherhood and motherhood of God in caring for the children who, in body and spirit, You entrust to them, as well as in the experience of fraternity that the family can give to the world.

Lord, grant that each family might live their specific vocation to holiness in the Church as a call to become missionary disciples, in the service of life and peace, in communion with our priests, religious, and all vocations in the Church.

Amen.
