Brothers and Sisters,

On the Solemnity of All Saints, the Church invites us to recall the holy men and women who have gone before us in faith and who have lived as authentic witnesses of the Gospel. Through their lives of faith, the saints give us hope that holiness is possible.

When we think of saints, we often think of those who have been canonized – the faithful men and women affirmed by the Church in special ways as having lived lives of heroic virtue. But all those in heaven, including those Pope Francis often called the "saints next door" are saints we celebrate on this day. We can be sure they intercede for us with God in heaven for our needs, big and small.

Like those in Revelation whose robes have been washed in the Blood of the Lamb, the saints come from every nation, race, people, and tongue. They have followed Christ in every Christian vocation – as priests and bishops, religious or lay people, martyrs and missionaries, young and old. The saints, our older brothers and sisters in faith, show us the many ways our lives can testify to God's goodness and love.

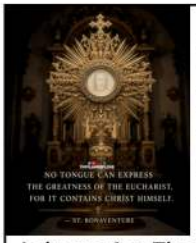

In today's Gospel – in the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus instructs His disciples in true blessedness as he teaches the beatitudes. Jesus calls blessed those who mourn, are persecuted and insulted, and those who hunger and thirst for righteousness. Calling His disciples to action, He invites them to be poor in spirit and clean of heart, to be meek and merciful peacemakers. The saints show us how to do this in many ways, times, and places.

What do we gain when we live as God's children, striving after holiness like these brothers and sisters? Eternal life. A future of hope, because we are rooted in Christ. "Rejoice and be glad for your reward will be great in heaven," Jesus says.

The saints show us that the hope we have in heaven can sustain us now on earth. In the second reading St Paul writes "Beloved, we are God's children now, what we shall be has not yet been revealed". Heaven, the kingdom of Beatitudes – blessedness with God is open for us. We need to live and strive to gain that place and enjoy forever with all the saints to adore our Almighty God. As we gather today around the Lord's table, we know we are joined by the Saints and we rejoice together in the wedding feast of the Lamb.

Brothers and sisters, as we begin the month of November which is dedicated in the tradition of the Church for the prayer for all our faithfully departed, please remember and pray for the souls of our loved ones in our family and our parish family.
