

Butterfly Defenses in Action

Draw a line from each adaptations to the type of defense it describes.

1. Animals have bright colors to signal danger, such as poison.

2. The glasswing butterfly has transparent wings making them hard to spot.

3. An owl butterfly has two large spots on its wings.

4. A giant swallowtail caterpillar resembles bird poop.

5. An animal blends in with their environment.

6. The orange migrant butterfly is yellow like the flowers in their habitat.

7. Large spots on an animal's side or back.

8. A viceroy butterfly has similar colors and patterns to poisonous monarch butterflies.

9. Monarch butterflies are bright orange.

10. An animal looks or acts like sometime else.

Mimicry

Camouflage

Eyespots

Warning Coloration