The Law Offices Of Eric Morrell: Still Fighting, Not Handshaking

As the world is gripped with new and unforeseen challenges, many of our legal institutions and college campuses have had to change to cope as well. However, our offices are still working diligently on behalf of our clients. We have set up various contingencies allowing us to continue fighting for our clients. Namely, setting up the ability to monitor our cases from home, and meeting with clients through other electronic methods such as Zoom. We also accept payments through Venmo during these times, allowing new clients to retain our services without ever leaving their homes. Even during a crisis, the criminal justice system does not stop fighting and neither do we.
