Go and Live the Word of God

What is a homily? Homily is rooted in the Greek word "homiletikos" which means "conversation," while sermon comes from the Latin word "sermo" or "speech." Homily is, in the words of the Second Vatican Council, "a part of the liturgy itself" (Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy, #52). Someone asked, "Is it possible for lay people from the congregation to share the Word of God or to preach at the Mass since there are some lay people who are excellent at talking and explaining the Scriptures?" It is a great idea, and in fact, there are lay people in the congregation who are excellent at talking and explaining the Scriptures. Some of them might be Scripture professors or theologians themselves. However, since they are not ordained deacon or priest in the Catholic Church, they are not allowed to preach at the Liturgy of the Mass. In the words of the document Redemptionis Sacramentum, "The homily, which is given in the course of the celebration of Holy Mass and is a part of the Liturgy itself, should ordinarily be given by the Priest celebrant himself. He may entrust it to a concelebrating Priest or occasionally, according to circumstances, to a Deacon, but never to a layperson" (RS #64).

In the book Fulfilled in Your Hearing, written by USCCB, it said, "A homily presupposes faith. Nor does the homily primarily concern itself with a systematic theological understanding of the faith" (17). A homily has nothing to do with faith, nor does a homily talk about God, which has nothing to do with our lives. If a homily concerns only God and has nothing to do with our lives, it only stays in our minds and can never touch the heart. If a homily can only stay in one's mind and never be able to touch the heart, then it's not a homily. Just as in a conversation, if one only reasons in his mind but does not carry out verbally, the other person will not know what he or she tries to communicate. A conversation cannot be a conversation if the words in the mind are not verbally delivered, and a homily cannot be a homily if the Word of God cannot move from the mind to touch the heart. The living homily is a homily that the Word of God moves from the mind to touch the heart and then deliver into action.

In today's Gospel, a scholar of the law understands the law so well that he does not miss a single beat when Jesus asks him what he has read from the law. He has no problem spelling out what he reads in the law. He only reads and memorizes, but he has not learned what he read. Luke precisely reports the words of Jesus when he answers the scholar's question by asking, "What is written in the law? How do you read it?" Again, he reads the law with his mind and memorizes it, but he does not allow the words he reads to touch his heart. That's why what he reads is just what he reads and he remembers it, but he is not able to live it because he does not allow the words he reads to touch his heart.

Have you and I ever read or listened to the Word of God? Have we ever allowed the Word of God to sink into our hearts, to take root in our hearts, and to be able to bear fruit from reading or listening to the Word of God? "Go and do" in order "to inherit the eternal life" is an invitation to the scholar of the law. What are you and I waiting for? Go and live by the Word of God to inherit the eternal life. The decision is always yours.

SAINT KATERI TEKAKWITHA (1656-1680)July 14

Though the New York State Thruway runs close by the North American Martyrs' Shrine, traffic's roar never pierces the peace enveloping Auriesville—Ossemon to Native Americans—in the lovely Mohawk Valley, where Kateri Tekakwitha was born barely ten years after the martyrdom of Isaac Jogues and his Jesuit and lay companions. Daughter of a Christian Algonquin mother and non-Christian Mohawk chief, Kateri's parents died in a smallpox epidemic widely blamed on the missionaries. Moreover, many Native Americans had experienced exploitation at the hands of "Christian" traders and trappers, further discrediting the faith Kateri embraced in baptism, then pledged to live even more intensely in vowed virginity. Misunderstanding led to harassment, prompting her move to a Christian village farther north along the Saint Lawrence River. Despite this, Kateri's faith remained undaunted, her selfless charity undiminished. Both before and after her death at twenty-four, this young "Lily of the Mohawks" drew countless converts to Christ by the fragrance of her goodness. Through us, does "the aroma of Christ" (2 Corinthians 2:15), attract others to the beauty of his gospel?

Fifteenth Sunday in Ordinary TimeExcuses, Excuses

As the saying goes, ignorance of the law is no excuse. That is what Moses is telling the people in the first reading. The laws of God are not difficult to understand. Anyone with a conscience should be able to live with them.

By the time of Jesus, the scribes and Pharisees had added many more laws. The scholar who questioned Jesus about eternal life knew what was important: loving God with all your being and loving your neighbor as yourself. If he had stopped there, he would have been all right. But by asking "Who is my neighbor?" he implied that there are limits to love.

Even today, we find people making excuses for not doing what God asks of us. We judge people who need help, saying they choose to be poor or homeless. We sign our kids up for so many sports that we don't even go to church on Sundays. Before you start beating yourself up with guilt, remember that God expects us to take care of our families, to spend time with our children, and even to take time to rest and relax. If we are willing to look at our lives and bring them to God, asking for guidance, we are making the first steps to keep God's law of love.
