Batswana Redefined

News - April 2026

The best of Botswana is just around the corner...

May is almost here, and with it comes the shift that everyone who loves Botswana knows well. The heat softens. The skies clear to that deep, untroubled blue. The Kalahari moves into its golden dry-season register, and far away in the highlands of Angola, the rains that will eventually become the Okavango flood pulse are already beginning their long, slow journey south. The best safari season in the world is warming up, and if 2026 is on your radar, the time to be planning is now.

Both Feline Fields Vintage Camp on the Mbudi Channel and Feline Fields Lodge in the Kalahari are welcoming guests into what promises to be a spectacular second half of the year.

Read on for a couple of things we think might inspire you.

We hope to welcome you very soon!

The Legacy Trail - a fresh perspective on the real Botswana!

There's a particular kind of traveller for whom the fly-in safari tells only part of the story. They want the roads between the wild places, the small towns glimpsed from a dusty window, the sense of a country unfolding gradually rather than arriving in a rush of rotors and runway. The Feline Fields Legacy Trail was designed precisely for them.

This seven-night package begins in style with Moonshine, Feline Fields' beloved antique Land Cruiser, collecting guests from Maun airport for some R and R in our wonderful lounge before their flight to Khwai and three nights at Feline Fields Vintage Camp on the Mbudi Channel.

A road trip back to Maun through the Khwai Community Reserve follows, with an overnight in Maun, a morning at the Elephant Havens conservation sanctuary and a community visit, before the rewarding drive into the Kalahari and three nights at Feline Fields Lodge in a gorgeous Bush Suite, with time with the Ju/'hoansi San, horse riding, game drives and a sleepout under a Kalahari sky on the menu!

It's a genuinely full Botswana experience at US$9,700 per person sharing for 2026, rising to US$10,000 per person sharing for 2027.

A year-round Delta destination!

One of the questions we hear most often about the Okavango Delta is "when should I go"? Feline Fields Vintage Camp has a straightforward answer. Come whenever you like!

Because the camp sits on the Mbudi Channel, a permanent waterway, there's always water at Feline Fields Vintage Camp. Mokoro trips are available year-round, not just during the flood months, and the birdlife across the Khwai Community Concession is exceptional in every season. Summer brings migratory species in their breeding plumage.

If you're a keen birder, then this is paradise! As the season shifts, resident kingfishers, jacanas, fish eagles, herons and rollers come into their own. The dawn chorus here, in any month of the year, is reason enough to be up before the light.

Add year-round game drives through one of Botswana's finest wildlife corridors, walking with expert guides, and the unique pleasure of swimming in the clear, tannin-dark waters of the Mbudi Channel lagoon, and the case for visiting whenever the moment is right makes itself very convincingly indeed.

Two amazing ecosystems through one lens!

There's a moment that keen photographers know well. It happens when light, subject, atmosphere and composition align simultaneously, when everything you've been waiting for arrives at once and the only thing standing between you and a remarkable image is the presence of mind to make it.

At Feline Fields, that moment doesn't come around once. It comes around repeatedly, in two completely different ecosystems, in two completely different qualities of light, offering two completely different creative worlds.

So, come with us and explore what makes Feline Fields Vintage Camp and Feline Fields Lodge such amazing destinations for anyone with a camera or smartphone keen on capturing memories that will last a lifetime through the lens! Read all about it in our latest blog!
