Tyfu is an online tool supporting individual learning journeys towards the four purposes of CfW.

We make it easy to embed forward looking assessment in everyday practice and track progress of individuals and groups with our unique Progression Continuum so that next steps for learners and future curriculum plans are readily determined.

Tyfu has been designed and tested by practitioners to ensure it is fit for purpose, manageable and reduces workload.

With the learner at the centre of Tyfu, it engages both learners and parents/ carers in the unique learning journey, while still helping you to review the progress of groups of learners to inform your practice and planning.

Tyfu is underpinned by a unique Progression Continuum developed using the Principles of progression in CfW.

The continuum utilises Progression Steps 1 to 5 in the descriptions of learning and the Principles of progression as exemplified in each Area of learning and experience (AoLE).

It takes account of progression as viewed in the Literacy and numeracy framework (LNF) and the Digital competence framework (DCF).

These elements are brought together and aligned with research-based evidence in learner progression to ensure the continuum is valid and can be accurately used to develop next steps for improvement in terms of individual learners and curriculum planning.

Easy to use, for staff, parents/carers and learners.

Easy to use – teachers, learners and parents receive their own login, giving each access to the information important to them.

Built in help guides and videos make it easy to get started and manage the learning journey.

App and web browser based access to ensure everyone can access Tyfu from anywhere.
