Shell Tuck Hem for a Fancy Finish

Be sure to test your settings on scraps before hemming your garment. First, press a double folded ¼-inch to ⅜-inch hem to the wrong side. Select the shell tuck stitch and tighten the upper thread tension considerably if it is not already selected by default. Working from the right side of the hem stitch along the folded edge, stitching so that the far right hand swing falls just off the edge of the fabric. When the stitch swings back to the left side it should pinch the hem and form a scallop. A tight upper tension is essential for the scallop to form. Increase the tension as needed to get the desired effect.
