Energy-efficient tips to increase savings

Heating and cooling improvements

- Set your thermostat to the highest comfortable setting in the summer and the lowest comfortable setting in the winter. The smaller the difference between the inside and outside temperatures, the lower your energy usage and bill will be.
- Use a ceiling fan and set your thermostat 3-4 degrees higher for cooling, or lower for heating. Set the fan's switch to run clockwise in the winter and counterclockwise in the summer.
- Check heating and AC filters each month and replace as necessary.
- Keep the fan switch of your thermostat in the "auto" position when operating your heating and AC unit. If you leave the switch set to "on," you may be increasing your energy bill.
- Prevent furniture and drapes from blocking airflow. Also, ensure that the outside AC unit is clear of any plants or obstructions.
- Keep interior doors open when running your heating and cooling system.
- Use caulk and weatherstripping to seal leaks and add insulation where needed on the interior and exterior of your house.
- Install gaskets under the electrical switch and outlet covers to prevent energy loss.
- Check the EnergyGuide ratings to find the most efficient models of appliances before you buy.
- Servicing your AC/heating system at least once a year helps to ensure its reliability and efficiency. It also helps to increase the system's lifetime.
- Check if your AC/heating system is equipped with a smart thermostat and review any history within the app or website. This will help you understand how much it is running in peak seasons and how it might be affecting your total energy consumption and cost.

Adjusting your thermostat a few degrees can make a difference.

Making simple adjustments to your thermostat during the day can help you avoid high energy bills.

*An electric heat pump can cut heating cost in half.
