EXEMPLARY WOMEN

Executive Women of the Palm Beaches to honor trio for leadership

Anne M. Gannon, Michele Poole and Jane Kreusler-Walsh will receive top honors May 2 at the Women in Leadership Awards luncheon hosted by the Executive Women of the Palm Beaches.

The women represent public sector, volunteer and private sector categories.

Gannon is the first female tax collector in Palm Beach County and a former state representative. Poole owns North Ridge Electric Inc. and was named the 2012 Advocate of the Year, National Center on Shaken Baby Syndrome. Kreusler-Walsh is a board-certified appellate lawyer and heads an all-woman law firm, Kreusler-Walsh, Compiani and Vargas, which won the 2012 Athena Business Award

Shirley Cowen, Bobbi and Harry Horwich, Paula and George Michele, and Ann and Baxter Webb.

Jay Cashmere, WPTV anchor, was master of ceremonies and spoke about his personal experience with the disease.

Art in the family —

On Wednesday, Stanley Katz, along with his daughter Roni Doppelt and granddaughter Stephanie, taught a class in painting and sculpture to residents of The Tradition of the Palm Beaches.

The art program there is supported by the Katz family. Last spring, Stanley, Roni and Stephanie were honored with an exhibit of their work at the Armory Art Center.

Kids in the Kitchen

— Parents and children ages 4-8 are invited to participate in Kids in the Kitchen, a free event from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday at the South Florida Science Museum.

Co-hosted by the Junior League of the Palm Beaches, it will teach kids how to make healthy snacks. It's open to the first 100 children who register at jlpbkittk.eventbrite.com.
