STUDENT SMILES

Fashion and Textile students worked on on their fast fashion and ethical consumerism projects. One project included repurposing an old skirt and curtain remnants to make a laptop case!

Forensics students got to try fingerprinting themselves recently for their Unit on Trace Evidence. They learned about using fingerprint ink to make their own 10 card print. Uniquely, our class had far more arch fingerprint types than is typical for the US population. Students also used different powders to collect latent fingerprints. These are fingerprints that we leave because of the oils on our skin but that we usually can't see until they are highlighted with a powder or sometimes even a UV light.

English III Honors getting outdoors this week to read The Great Gatsby and take in the beauty that our campus offers.
