Pastor's Reflection

Dear brothers and sisters,

This week we have two great saints that have been examples of holiness for hundreds of years, St. Patrick who lived in the 5th century, and St. Joseph from the very beginning of Christianity.

St. Patrick is particularly celebrated in our Archdiocese because of the generous support the Catholic church in Ireland has given to us through many missionary priests. Now we can pray for Ireland because they are in need of spiritual rebirth and renewal. This is appropriate given that St. Patrick came to Ireland first as a shanghaied slave and later came back as an emissary of the mercy of Jesus Christ. His example helped to bring the faith to birth throughout Ireland.

If St. Patrick is the model missionary then St. Joseph is the model husband and father. In our world today being a heroic husband and father seems almost as rare as being a heroic missionary. There is a strong connection between the two. Fathers help create sons and daughters that can see the love of our heavenly Father and desire to share it with those that don't have that. In a sense, missionaries are disciples that help those who are fatherless become "fathered". St. Joseph has done this for all of us. His fatherly presence in the life of Jesus has been gifted down through the ages to us so that we can be in relationship with his Son. St. Joseph, like his wife, St. Mary, are emissaries of the Trinity through the Father by providing His Son a family to begin his life with us and prepare us for the work of the Holy Spirit.

Blessings,

Fr. Peter

Reflexión del pastor

Queridos hermanos y hermanas,

Esta semana celebramos a dos grandes santos que han sido ejemplos de santidad durante siglos: San Patricio, que vivió en el siglo V, y San José, desde los inicios del cristianismo.

San Patricio es especialmente celebrado en nuestra Arquidiócesis por el generoso apoyo que la Iglesia Católica en Irlanda nos ha brindado a través de numerosos sacerdotes misioneros. Ahora podemos orar por Irlanda, ya que necesita un renacimiento y una renovación espiritual. Esto es apropiado, dado que San Patricio llegó a Irlanda primero como esclavo secuestrado y luego regresó como emisario de la misericordia de Jesucristo. Su ejemplo contribuyó a que la fe naciera en toda Irlanda.

Si San Patricio es el modelo de misionero, San José es el modelo de esposo y padre. En el mundo actual, ser un esposo y padre heroico parece casi tan inusual como ser un misionero heroico. Existe una fuerte conexión entre ambos. Los padres ayudan a formar hijos e hijas que puedan ver el amor de nuestro Padre celestial y deseen compartirlo con quienes no lo tienen. En cierto sentido, los misioneros son discípulos que ayudan a quienes no tienen padre a ser "padres". San José lo ha hecho por todos nosotros. Su presencia paternal en la vida de Jesús nos ha sido otorgada a través de los siglos para que podamos relacionarnos con su Hijo. San José, al igual que su esposa, Santa María, son emisarios de la Trinidad a través del Padre, al proporcionarle a su Hijo una familia para comenzar su vida con nosotros y prepararnos para la obra del Espíritu Santo.

Bendiciones,

Padre Pedro
