Elementary School Engagements Kids Taking Action | Kit 3

Elementary Engagement 1 | CONSIDER and REFLECT

Watch the video featuring Kid President.

Next write down 3 things that people do that make you feel awesome. After that, write down 3 things that you do for others that make them feel awesome. You can also draw your ideas if you don't feel like writing sentences!

Elementary Engagement 2 | WATCH and REFLECT

There are 3 sections in How Kids Changed the World the video you will be watching for this engagement. At the end of each section, the video will tell you to pause and discuss a question or two. Go ahead and pause when you are cued and then write or draw your responses.

FYI, the Scholastic video tells the story of civil-rights activist Ayanna Najuma. Starting at age 7 in the 1950s, Ayanna and other children participated in sit-ins in Oklahoma City to try to desegregate the lunch counters and restaurants there.

We encourage you to send your written or illustrated answers to rockyourworld@creativevisions.org submit it to the Rock Your Rights Gallery.

Elementary Engagement 3 | CREATE

This week, you've been asked to consider so many things about being an activist! Things like what people do to make you feel awesome and what you do for others to make them feel great. You've also learned about different ways to take action like Ayanna Najuma did when she was just 7 years old. She mentioned that her friends wrote speeches, made posters and even learned how to peacefully demand change. Ayanna spoke about how change can be scary and that fear can sometimes turn into angry and mean behaviors. For this engagement, do one of the following:

- Make a poster that shows how people can spread kindness to each other.
- Write a poem about anything this week's engagements made you think about.
- Take a picture that shows how change makes you feel.

Once you're done, send your creation to rockyourworld@creativevisions.org submit it to the Rock Your Rights Gallery.
