READINGS FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 25 - Thirtieth Sunday in Ordinary Time

First Reading

God hears the cry of the oppressed.

Exodus 22:20-26

Psalm

"I love you, Lord, my strength."

Psalm 18

Second Reading

God's people are renowned for their conversion and love of God.

1 Thessalonians 1:5c-10

Gospel

The greatest law is the law of love.

Matthew 22:34-40

We are reminded in today's Gospel of the two commandments that Jesus identifies as the greatest. Above every other law, order, or command, we are called to do two things: love God and love our neighbor. The first reading gives practical applications of this command. They reflect an era from many centuries ago, but we can still appreciate them today. May our love for God and neighbor grow and flourish in our hearts, our souls, and our minds, motivating us to show that love here and out in the world.

PARTICIPATION AND STEWARDSHIP OF TREASURE

Book Club

October 25, 7 PM | St. John Parish Admin Bldg.

We are reading The Power and the Glory by Graham Greene. In a poor, remote section of southern Mexico, the paramilitary group, the Red Shirts have taken control. God has been outlawed, and the priests have been systematically hunted down and killed. Now, the last priest is on the run. Too human for heroism, too humble for martyrdom, the nameless little worldly "whiskey priest" is nevertheless impelled toward his squalid Calvary as much by his own compassion for humanity as by the efforts of his pursuers.

FAITH IN FOCUS

Preface Dialogue

THE EUCHARISTIC Prayer of every Mass begins with a three-part dialogue between the priest and the people. He issues a greeting, urging them to lift their hearts and give thanks. The people affirm each phrase. This dialogue entered the liturgy by the fourth century to introduce the prayer that evolved into Eucharistic Prayer II. It solemnly begins the Church's most solemn prayer.

You also hear a phrase like "The Lord be with you" at the start of Mass, before the Gospel, and in the preparation for Communion. That formula probably originated in the Preface dialogue and then entered broader usage to alert worshipers that something important was about to happen.

In the second part of the dialogue, the priest invites the people to lift up their hearts. They respond, "We lift them up to the Lord." An early English translation used the past tense: "We have lifted them up to the Lord," but people are to do this action right now. A literal translation of the Latin would be more like, "We hold them before the Lord." The dialogue asks us to become wholly present to God to prepare for what follows.

The priest then gives this explicit direction: "Let us give thanks to the Lord our God." During the Eucharistic Prayer, the consecration will take place, and people will pause for adoration, but its overall purpose is to give thanks to God. For many years people responded, "It is right to give him thanks and praise," but the historical response uses fewer words: "It is right and just." In the dialogue, priest and people inaugurate the Eucharistic Prayer, they lift their hearts to God, and they begin to do what it is right to do: give thanks.
