Dear parishioners and guests,

We continue with another excerpt from the essay “Contemplative Prayer and Hope for America” by Dr. Anthony Lilles.

“The Lord’s own teaching about prayer gave the saints good reason to hope that those who ask for Him will receive Him. If St. Paul declares that ‘In Him we live and move and have our being’ (Acts 17:28), and if he also proclaims that Christ is ‘before all things and holds all things together in himself’ (Col. 1:17), this means that the Risen Lord is more present to us than we are to ourselves. He never changes but is always making all things new. His presence is never static but always at work in each moment of our lives with the power of the Holy Spirit, even as He sits at the right hand of the Father. Contemplative prayer welcomes this saving presence and makes space for Him in the heart.

“St. John Paul II spoke of this prayer as gazing into the face of Christ, who gazes on us with love. St. John of the Cross describes an unfamiliar light, a dark night, a secret ladder, a divine inflow, and an awakening in the soul that brings all of creation into harmony. For St. Therese of the Child Jesus, this prayer is a cry of the heart that embraces both sorrow and joy, one that she manages to offer even in the total darkness of her own faith. Recently canonized Carlo Acutis pondered such truths in Eucharistic miracles, and Pier Giorgio Frassati expressed it in his hidden care for the poor. Then there is St. Paul’s beautiful description of ‘the first fruits of the Spirit’ manifest in a cosmic and interior groaning, ‘The Spirit helps us in our weakness, for we do not know how to pray as we ought, but the Spirit himself intercedes for us with sighs too deep for words’ (Rom. 8:26, cf. 8:23).

“This prayer is always a participation in the last wordless cry of Christ from the Cross, and only this kind of prayer learns to hear all that the Father wanted to disclose in that sacred moment. In the Mass, the Liturgy of the Hours, and Eucharistic Exposition, as well as in other forms of personal prayer such as the Rosary or Lectio Divina, the Risen Lord pours His life out even to the point of what the Fathers of the Church describe as a holy inebriation, and contemplative prayer is vulnerable to this sober intoxication. Rather than diminishing reason, this sharing in the Lord’s own prayer leaves it in silent astonishment. Such chastened clarity is filled with the silence of the Word of the Father, a silent fullness that is completing His work in the soul and through the soul in the world—such is the renewal of prayer that answers the horror of violence.”

Fr. Kenny St. Hilaire, Pastor

How to check out a book: A few of the books are marked as Reference and are "for use in the library." The others may be checked out using the card inside the pocket in the front of each book. After writing your name and contact information on the card, place it in the round container under the bulletin board. When you are finished with the book, return it to the box marked "Return Books Here."

A mom texts, "Hi! Son, what do IDK, LY and TTYL mean?" He texts back, "I don't know, love you and talk to you later." The mom replies, "It's OK, don't worry about it. I'll ask your sister. Love you too."
