FOR FAMILIES WITHOUT INSURANCE, OR NOT USING IT

You have the right to a "Good Faith Estimate" of what your health care will cost

By law, health care providers must give you an estimate of your bill for health care items and services before you get them. This applies if you don't have certain types of health coverage, or you aren't using it.

- You have the right to a Good Faith Estimate of the total expected cost of any health care items or services. You can get one when you ask or when you schedule. It includes related costs, like medical tests, prescription drugs, equipment, and hospital fees.
- If you schedule at least 3 business days ahead, make sure your provider or facility gives you a Good Faith Estimate in writing within 1 business day after you schedule. If you schedule at least 10 business days ahead, make sure you get it in writing within 3 business days after you schedule. You can also ask any provider or facility for an estimate before you schedule. If you do, make sure you get it in writing within 3 business days after you ask.
- If your bill from any provider or facility is at least $400 more than the Good Faith Estimate from that provider or facility, you can dispute the bill. You must start the dispute within 120 calendar days of the date on the bill.
- A Good Faith Estimate is not a contract. It doesn't require you to get the care listed.
- Save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate.
