GOVERNANCE

Corporate governance covers the rules, relationships, policies, procedures and processes which guide the way organisations operate and comply with any and all relevant legislation.

The keystones of good corporate governance are strategic planning, oversight without interference of operations, management of corporate risk and management of key executive staff.

Governance includes director roles and responsibilities for the whole range of financial health of the corporation, leadership, networking, strategic planning, market profiling, risk management and procurement and community engagement.

Ron Browne, Managing Consultant has spent many years delivering governance training to directors of not-for-profit organisations across the eastern states. With access to leading governance and financial experts, Extrapreneur Services can meet all your governance needs, including Board Performance Assessments.
