MENTORING

Leadership can be lonely and everyone looks to the leader for all the answers. So who does the leader go to for advice and support? A great mentor is the answer many leaders lean on to help guide their knowledge, skills and actions, whilst seeming to have it all together.

Ron Browne, Managing Consultant at Extrapreneur Services can provide invaluable external expertise, insight and knowledge gained over a wide spectrum of industries in a career spanning more than 40 years in business, as a mentor to a chief executive, leadership team or corporate board.

Mentoring is the informal process of transferring from the mentor to the mentee, knowledge, social capital and psychosocial support that is relevant to the mentee's work, career, professional or personal development.

This can also extend beyond personal support to guidance on how to manage succession planning and staff development.

Mentoring provided by Extrapreneur Services includes but is not limited to -

- ✗ Chief Executive Support
- ✗ Organisational Leadership
- ✗ Staff Development and Team Building techniques
- ✗ Interpersonal Communication skills
- ✗ Career Review and Future Development
- ✗ Sounding Board for confidential issues

Mentoring can be provided one on one, developed to be an organisational program or even provided to the governance team, and can be interwoven with a succession planning approach.
