“This temple of chic overlooking downtown Buenos Aires is bringing sexy back to the neighborhood”

Condé Nast Traveller

The Hotel is a complex of two buildings, a restored Palace from 1934 (featuring 23 guestrooms) and a modern tower (featuring 142 guestrooms) that artfully combines Buenos Aires’ classic architecture with elegant contemporary design.

A 1934 Restored Palace

The Duhau palace, the heart of Park Hyatt Buenos Aires, was for more than fifty years the private residence of one of the most emblematic families of the city.

At the beginning of the 20th century, Mr. Luis Duhau, then Minister of Agriculture, built the property as a family residence. French architect Léon Douge was commissioned to lead one of the most ambitious private projects in the city: fine marble was shipped from Italy, carpets arrived from Turkey, chandeliers from Russia, oak panels from Normandy, and fabrics from across Europe.

Today, the historic building—recognized as a National Historic Monument—is one of the architectural jewels of Buenos Aires. Its neoclassical style lends the Palace a timeless elegance, seamlessly blended with contemporary design.

“Entering the Palace is an experience that evokes Buenos Aires’s golden age. Rooms in the Palace are rich and decorated with persian carpets and crystal chandeliers. Interiors in the Posadas building, located across the multilevel garden, are cool and contemporary...”
