Rise and Recliner Chairs Explained

Pick & Mix Collection

Dual, Quad & Zero-Gravity will ft any chair model where you see this logo

Single Action

The single-action rise and recliner chair usually has two buttons and limited adjustment. One button raises the footrest and continues to be going the backrest. The other button returns the chair to its original position and, if held, lifts the user to a standing position.

Dual Action

The dual-action rise and recliner chair offers the same functions as a single-action chair but has four buttons, allowing the footrest and backrest to be adjusted independently, giving far greater comfort and relaxation.

Quad Action

The Quad Action Riser Recliner offers all the features of a Dual Action chair, with the added benefit of independent head/neck and lumbar adjustment, all at the touch of a button.

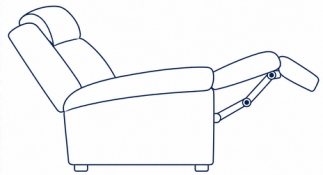

Zero Gravity

The Zero Gravity Chair is a completely different experience that really has to be tried to be appreciated. It offers all the benefits of a quad-action chair, plus a much higher leg lift and pelvic tilt.

Osteo-Flexor

The Osteo Flexor offers all the benefits of a Zero Gravity chair, but Its leg rest includes a flexor feature that helps reduce tension in the legs. The chair has a remote similar to a dual-action chair, with the added convenience of side controls on the chair itself.

Health benefits of a riser recliner

MORE COMFORT | GREATER INDEPENDENCE | A HAPPIER, HEALTHIER YOU

Better Posture

Riser recliners can support proper spinal alignment, helping to improve overall posture while sitting.

Relief from Acid Reflux

The reclining position can help minimize symptoms of acid reflux or Gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD), providing relief while sitting.

Fibromyalgia

The reclining position can help alleviate widespread pain and tenderness in the body.

Muscle Relaxation

The reclining position allows muscles to relax and decompress, especially in the lower back and legs can help ease pain.

Supports Breathing

For respiratory conditions (like COPD or sleep apnea), the reclined, elevated position can help open the airways, making breathing easier. It can be a more comfortable position for breathing compared to sleeping in a flat bed, however an Adjustable Beds could be the answer for your best nights sleep.

Better Circulation

When the chair reclines and the footrest raises, it helps to elevate the legs, improving blood circulation, especially in people with poor circulation or conditions like varicose veins, edema, or heart issues. Elevating the legs reduces swelling and promotes better blood flow.

Posture and Spinal Alignment

Maintaining a more ergonomic position helps to keep your body in a well-supported position. This reduces strain on the back, neck, and shoulders, and can prevent or alleviate discomfort from poor posture.

Different Activities

Whether reading, watching TV, or napping, the ability to adjust positions can enhance comfort and support different activities, encouraging more time spent in a healthy, relaxed state.

Relaxation and Stress Relief

Reclining can promote relaxation, reducing stress levels and improving overall mental well-being.

Joint Relief

These chairs can relieve pressure on joints, making it easier for individuals with arthritis or other joint pain to find a comfortable position and let the pain ease.

Reduced Swelling

Elevating the legs while sitting can help reduce swelling in the feet and ankles, particularly beneficial for those with edema.

Ease of Transition

The riser function assists users in standing up and sitting down safely, reducing the risk of falls, which is especially important for the elderly or those with mobility challenges.

What Our Customers Say

REAL PEOPLE. REAL FEEDBACK.

We're proud to help our customers live more comfortably and independently.

Helen Whitaker

Great service from beginning to end. No hard sell, lots of helpful advice and a great choice. Put my mum at complete ease, would definitely recommend this company.

David Fowler

Fabulous! Thank you for your advice & assistance.

Brian Dawson

Excellent courteous friendly and helpful service without any pressure - highly recommended.

Anne Nolan

A great range to choose from and very helpful answering our questions. We are very happy with friendly and efficient service and definitely recommend them.

Louise Watson

They are good all round human beings who actually do a job that they promise (old school), they don't charge the earth and they actually do extra than asked. I can not fault these guys at all, they care about what they do and I would recommend them to anyone.
