

Screw Terminal Electrolytic Capacitors Terminal Screws and Washers

We currently supply the terminal screws and washers with the standard designs from the ALS30 and ALS40 ranges. All the other ranges and special designs are supplied without the terminal screws and washers.

The majority of customers prefer to use their own screws and washers and discard the ones we supply with the capacitors. During the next few months, we are introducing new packaging where it is difficult to include any accessories in the box with the capacitors.

We will make the following change to our procedures

From 1st Jan 2010 we will no longer supply screws and washers with the ALS30 and ALS40 ranges of screw terminals.

Please advise your customers of this change.

There will be no change to the price of these capacitors, but if some of your customers urgently need the terminal screws and washers we can provide these separately free of charge.
