Covenant Church: The Grace of Giving

Andrew Myers, Senior Pastor

And God is able to make all grace abound to you, so that having all sufficiency in all things at all times, you may abound in every good work.

—1 Corinthians 9:8

In the rhythms of our congregational life, November presents us with opportunities to look to the coming year. Together, we will hear Stewardship Reports which will invite each of us to consider our commitment—in time and resources—to the ministries of the church.

November 23 will be our Stewardship Sunday on which you will be invited to present your Giving Pledge for the coming year.

In this season, it is helpful, I believe, to turn to some reflections of the apostle Paul in 2 Corinthians. The eighth and ninth chapters of that letter contain some of the richest teaching within Scripture on the topic of giving in the life of a Christian.

On the one hand, in 2 Cor 8:9, Christ's own self-giving love is presented in these stunning terms: "For you know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, so that you by his poverty might become rich." Paul's intent was that the church would be moved by the generosity of Christ to live generous lives within Christ's kingdom.

To that end, in 2 Cor 9:7, he gives the exhortation: "Each one must give as he has decided in his heart, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver." Those words of Paul are both freeing and challenging. It is noteworthy, then, that in 9:8, Paul goes on to state that "God is able to make all grace abound within you." The connection seems to be this—that if our hearts struggle to give generously and cheerfully, we need to gain a deeper confidence in God's grace. God, in his grace, promises to supply our every need. His grace is sufficient for us. That is, the Christian's heart is meant to be moved to give—not from obligation nor from some expectation of receiving something in return. Rather, the Christian is to give to give to the work of God's kingdom freely and cheerfully and generously.

When this happens in a Christian it is because their heart is grounded in the all-sufficient and surpassing grace of Christ. We give from hearts that cry out, "Thanks be to God for his inexpressible gift" (2 Cor 9:15)!

As we enter our Stewardship Season, may we ourselves be moved by the grace of God. And may God's Spirit cause every good work to abound in us. To help us as a congregation approach Stewardship Sunday in an informed way, this Compass once again includes the special Financial Report from your Session (presented last month). I encourage you to read that statement on the following page.

Special Finance Update

Each of us is drawn to Covenant from our love for the Lord, and because of that shared love for Christ, we also love Christ's Church. It is our joy, then, to give and participate in the cause of the Gospel.

Covenant has seen its share of challenges in recent years. For some time, Covenant has operated with expenses and staffing commensurate to a larger congregation. Because of this, in 2023, Covenant's elders set a goal to arrive at a balanced budget by the year-end of 2026. To reach that goal, the elders have made a series of sometimes difficult decisions which have already significantly reduced our expenses:

- In 2023, restructuring Children's ministry to operate with fewer staff members;
- In 2024, eliminating the radio broadcast;
- In 2025, changing IT services providers; and, most recently, eliminating the Congregational Care and Full-time Custodial staff positions.

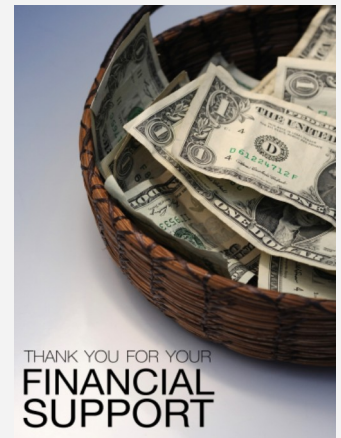

Along the way, we have also made significant budget reductions with respect to building projects. And, we have sought to encourage the Covenant congregation in volunteer opportunities where it is not necessary to rely upon paid services.

We continue to move toward our goal of a balanced budget, but your elders want you to understand that we yet have further progress to make together. Many members are giving generously, and we give thanks to God! Our pledged giving, however, remains far short of covering our overall budget. Meanwhile, our non-pledged giving has decreased. The simple truth, at this time, is that our regular congregational giving does not cover our expenses.

Soon we will begin our 2026 budgeting process for the church. Even though our staff and ministry teams have been very diligent in watching their expenses, we will be asking for all ministry areas to cut additional expenses where possible for 2026.

Your elders want to encourage you. We desire to avoid the kind of difficult cuts that have been necessary in recent days. That means we do need to increase our giving. It is our desire to make ministry decisions motivated by what we value and see as strategic—not merely because of what is necessary.

To that end, we hope you'll commit with us to finish 2025 with strength. We see God at work. We see many individuals growing in Christ, and we rejoice to also see a full New Members Class. If you've not previously given regularly to ministry here at Covenant, would you consider linking arms with us in the cause of the Gospel? Help us ensure that the ministry and witness that we love at Covenant will continue for many years to come. Let's together respond in thanksgiving to God, giving generously as God enables us.

It's Beginning to Look a Lot Like Christmas

Kevin Boesiger, Director of Music & Outreach

It's November, and the holiday season is practically upon us. I have a mixed bag of emotions for this time of year. It is a great time to be thankful for all God has done for us and a reminder of what God has provided us through his only Son. It is also one of the busiest times of year with all the activities at church, family gatherings and other celebrations. It can be exhausting! It can also be a wonderful time of year to create memories and special times with our family and friends. I have talked with several people over the past five years of doing our Christmas musicals at Covenant, who have made it a tradition to attend and invite friends to join them.

This year's musical, Echoes of Christmas focuses on a family whose parents are selling the family home where all the kids grew up. The kids and grandkids struggle with giving up the home where all their childhood memories reside. The parents assure them those memories will go with them and change; many times bringing about something better. Yes, there will be sacrifice but sometimes sacrifice is necessary to bring about good. God gave us Jesus to redeem us and bring us back to fellowship with Him. Isn't that what Christmas is all about.

As you plan out your holiday schedule, consider taking the time to attend this year's Christmas musical and invite your family or friends to join you. Everyone will be able to relate to the story and will understand the struggle the family is going through. They may find themselves with memories of their own and how God has made them better because they were willing to sacrifice and follow Him.

PHISHING SCAMS USE AI TO TARGET CHURCHES

On-line scammers have turned to AI (Artificial Intelligence) as the latest method to defraud churches and the public.

Ministry Watch magazine shares the following: "churches and faith-based organizations are increasingly becoming targets for cybercriminals through data breaches and ransomware."

Just a reminder...

If you receive a text or email from a staff member at Covenant asking you for a favor, financial assistance or to purchase gift cards, PLEASE DO NOT RESPOND! Staff members will not contact you in this way. If you are ever in doubt contact the church office. To learn more, click the link below.

Monthly Update

Children continue through the books of 1 and 2 Samuel in Sunday School. They learned how David was called into a role of shepherding God's flock (the nation of Israel) after protecting his family's flock of sheep. He showed his trust in God through defeating Goliath, his heart for mercy in sparing Saul, and his willingness to put God's plans above his own. But King David was still a broken human who gave in to his sinful desires. Yet, God showed His love and grace by forgiving and restoring David upon his repentance. Children learn how God is greater than everything and everyone.

In Wednesday night Kid's Connection, children are focusing on different spiritual disciplines connected to the bible stories that they are learning in Sunday School. In their current unit, they are focusing on fellowship. Children are learning that fellowship means coming together to help, encourage, and grow closer to God and each other. It's like being on a team where everyone supports each other. Children are looking at scripture examples of how Jesus showed us exactly what true fellowship looks like.

THANK YOU!

We hosted The Fall Festival on Sunday, October 19. All were welcomed to enjoy dinner, play carnival games, roast marshmallows over fire, enjoy good fellowship and more! We had an incredible turnout of both people from the community and members of our church. A HUGE thank you to Donna Quick for helping to organize this event and to our volunteers who helped make it possible!

n. The moon flower opens its white, trumpet-like flowers at eventide.

Eventide, or better known as dusk, is my favorite time of day. As far back as I can remember, I always thought it magical. A vivid childhood memory of my dad burning leaves in a rusty trash barrel, all aflame, while I chased a rogue maple leaf floating in the air. Or as an adult, relaxing on the deck with dinner simmering on the stove, waiting for my husband to come home with the sound of cicadas winding down.

It's twilight time.

A calming transition from day into night. I subconsciously stop toiling and decide what didn't get done can wait till tomorrow. Quietly and effortlessly, eventide envelops the day before it becomes night. Nothing sudden about eventide, but if you don't watch for it, sadly, it will pass you by.

Don't look for it on the clock, you won't find it there. It changes with the seasons. Arriving early in the day during the winter months, it will patiently wait till children have played past their bedtime during the dog days of summer. It might be my imagination, but I think it has its own scent, something happens to the air that fills the senses. In the spring a breeze might blow away humidity; in the fall it will beckon a sweater. It's eventide.

Presently, I capture eventide more on purpose. I use this dream-like time of day for a reason. Even though I'm secure in my relationship with the Lord, the world with its cares and responsibilities can bully me, crowding out my thoughts of him. I spend this interlude to tell him he's not forgotten, but more importantly, to celebrate he has not forgotten me. I recall his delight in me. I am his Hephzibah, his church, his people. It's never allocated for Bible study or devotions or even a quiet time. Eventide is for delighting only.

As the curtain begins its slow descent on the day, I secretly enter the land of "the married," or Beulah. I savor the moment, and then the night ushers in and tells me it's time to move on. But I'm left secure in my standing, knowing that another day will bring its magic. When the moon flower opens its white, trumpet-like flowers, at eventide.

Members and friends of Covenant,

Ginny and I first attended Covenant in 2014, joining in 2015. Over the next decade several church officers have resigned. They then left Covenant. There are two Corporation Officers required by the State of Nebraska, President and Treasurer. These are elected/appointed by the Session, not the Congregation. In late 2024, I told the Session I must be replaced as Treasurer, no later than 31, December 2025. Therefore, I am retiring as Treasurer, hopefully before 31, December 2025, with a replacement. We passed a financial audit earlier this year and our processes/procedures were affirmed. I wish I could say that contributions are doing as well as needed but I hope 2026 will see better results. We will remain members of Covenant but I am recognizing that at 85 I do not have the health, energy or abilities I once had. I have been asked to remain on the Finance Committee and have tentatively agreed.

Angel Encounter

Chuck Tomek, Member

I was working a 24-hour emergency room shift in Hawaii in mid September and was having a rough day. Not difficult in the ER, but personally. My wife wasn't with me on the island and that always makes me sad. My son-in-law, father, and mother-in-law were having issues. It heightens my concerns being so far away, often when help is needed at home.

I'd awakened at 3:00 a.m. before the start of my ER shift and could not get back to sleep. I sat in the dark on the condominium lanai, watching the sun rise over the ocean. I dreaded the upcoming, long shift, being so fatigued from the start. I prayed for physical and mental stamina to make it through. It's a prayer I have said with increasing frequency over the years.

I was asked to care for a 70-year-old lady who severely lacerated a finger with an electric hedge trimmer. It was going to take quite some time to repair. I prefer these types of injuries to ones that take a simple 1-2 stitches to fix. Why? Because in slower emergency rooms you have more time to converse with and get to know your patients. I love that.

I anesthetized the finger and went to work, striking up a conversation as I did so. My patient told me she was a "street preacher." She witnessed to the countless homeless, drug addicted, and mentally ill on the island. She spoke passionately about her love for these people and the Lord. She quoted scripture with ease. Her stories were amazing. She then turned the conversation towards me and asked if I knew the Lord. I opened my heart to this lady I'd just met and revealed my love for Christ and the Bible. I spoke of my decades of medical mission work and my desire to do more for our Savior. As I meticulously put her injured finger back together, she sang hymns and openly prayed. On more than one occasion I had to turn away so she wouldn't see my tears. When finished, she had a nurse take our picture together so she could put it on her Facebook page. We prayed together one final time.

When she left, I went outside and walked around the perimeter of the hospital, giving thanks to the Lord for the encounter. I told Him I didn't care how busy my final 14 hours in the ER were going to be as this one patient left me on an emotional high. No amount of fatigue or lack of sleep was going to ruin that.

And I thought of how the tables were turned. I see so many troubled people in the ER, in the valleys of life, and I do my best to counsel them, encourage them, give them hope and confidence. On this day, the patient counseled the physician.

When praying for stamina earlier in the day, my hope was for the occasional lapse in patients so I could take a quick nap. But our merciful Lord and Savior smiled and said, "I can do much better than that, my son, I will bring you an angel."

Going forward, I will no longer ask for stamina as I drive to work. I will ask for an encounter only He can provide.

"For He will command his angels concerning you to protect you in all your ways." - Psalm 91:11

Men...life is full of surprises and your stories of life can benefit other men to know they are not alone. The struggle to be servant leaders is a continual process, but it is our journey and purpose to get up each morning!

CLASSES:

- Men's Wednesday Night Class: As of this writing we are considering how to finish out the holiday season starting November thru December. Pastor Andrew did a great job of presenting tough material that non-believers use against believers. We grow when we can discuss difficult issues!
- Thursday Morning Bible Study - Five Books of James will take us up to Thanksgiving and then we will start another book...men's choice! One chapter each Thursday.

Our Format: Open with prayer requests, read the verses for the day, go on to questions from the Serendipity Bible and then close in prayer. I would be dishonest if I didn't admit that we do warm up with Husker updates, but not for long...the Bible is our reason for meeting!

FELLOWSHIP:

- Saturday, October 18 - Men's Breakfast: Guest speaker was Dr. Chuck Tomek, M.D. The men loved his stories about God and the men and women who travel around the world to help others in South Sudan, Africa. They felt moved to be among a practicing servant leader...it was a biblical application at its finest. He brought along another traveler, George, who gave his version of what to expect and he was so moved by the people that the miserable weather didn't discourage him from going back. This time he handed out more glasses to those with vision issues. Chuck wrapped up his presentation by describing how to capture an Anaconda...being a Christian requires a lot of heart! You will seek me and find me when you seek me with all your heart. Jeremiah 29:13

UPDATES:

Women's Circle

Thursday, October 16 was a beautiful day, a little crisp outside, but the sun was shining. Our color-theme was Orange and our hostesses: Janie M., Mary P., and Marion Z. decorated the dining room with orange & black table cloths and cute decorations fit for a party. Our catered meal was a Thanksgiving with roasted turkey, mashed potatoes & gravy, dressing, green beans almondine, cranberries in sauce and roll/butter. Our hostesses served pumpkin pie with whipped cream for dessert.

Twenty-six ladies attended with most in orange attire. It was so fun! After a prayer and lunch we sang "Blessed Assurance" and recognized our ladies with October birthday. Peg B. talked about chapter 11 in John. Our special guest speaker, Covenant member, Debarra Prentice told us her story about twenty years of teaching and ministering in Zimbabwe and Eswatini, Africa. She brought pictures and a special slide presentation. We are very blessed that Debarra came to Omaha and is here at Covenant. Thank you, Debarra! God bless you!

Our last Circle for 2025, will be held on November 20. It is our traditional "Soups" & "Pies" gathering and our color theme is Brown. Ladies are encouraged to wear holiday attire - Thanksgiving or Christmas. Some will make homemade soups and some will bring homemade pies. It is a lovely time together. We have something special planned, so we hope everyone can attend. Please RSVP to Renee Barbe.

We do not have Circle in December, January or February. We take a winter break, so mark your calendars - our first Circle of 2026 is on Thursday, March 19.
