Wyoming Legends and Landscapes

There are places that live in the American imagination long before you ever see them, and this journey gathers the greatest of them into a single, unforgettable week. From the geysers of Yellowstone to the soaring peaks of the Tetons, from the frontier streets of Cody to the antler arches of Jackson Hole, you will travel through landscapes and legends that defined the West. Every mile has been thoughtfully arranged, so that all you need to do is settle in and take it in.

The adventure begins in Bozeman, Montana, where the remarkable Museum of the Rockies and its world-class dinosaur collection set the tone for the discoveries ahead. From there you journey into Cody, the town founded by Buffalo Bill himself and still beating with the heart of the Old West. Two full days immerse you in its spirit: the extraordinary Buffalo Bill Center of the West, a narrated trolley through historic streets, a hearty chuckwagon lunch, and an evening of Western dining and the famous Cody Nite Rodeo beneath the open sky.

Then comes the crown jewel. You enter Yellowstone, the first national park in the world, and spend an unforgettable night inside its boundaries, on the shore of Yellowstone Lake, where few travelers ever have the privilege to stay. Bison graze the Hayden Valley, the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone thunders below its overlooks, and Old Faithful performs its timeless eruption just as it has for centuries. To wake within the park, far from the crowds and the gateway towns, is a rare and quiet luxury.

The journey continues south into Grand Teton National Park, where the mountains rise straight from the valley floor in one of the most breathtaking sights in North America. You drift down the Snake River on a gentle float, the peaks mirrored in the water and wildlife along the banks, and cross Jenny Lake by boat to the foot of the range. Two nights in charming Jackson Hole offer time to explore its galleries and shops, and a farewell dinner to toast the memories you have made together.

Throughout it all, the OregonWest difference is felt in every detail. Round-trip airfare, upscale accommodations, memorable dining, and a professional tour director who looks after your every comfort mean there is nothing to arrange and nothing to worry about. You will travel in the company of fellow explorers, in a group small enough to feel like friends by journey's end. This is the West as it was meant to be experienced, seamlessly, warmly, and unforgettably.
