The Magnum 9.70 is Viper's answer to those seeking a large RIB capable of handling rough weather conditions and transporting the family or group safely and with spacious comfort.

Its hull follows American naval design with a deep deadrise of 26 degrees and a striking sport line. Its length and the high-standard hull dominate the waves, providing confidence to the operator, even without experience with such length boats.

The transom and the forward storage of the Magnum 9.70 are designed in such a way to accommodate either an inboard-outboard diesel or gasoline engine.
