

Medicare Questions

Let's talk Medicare.

Approaching age 65? It's an important milestone in your retirement journey. Age 65 is when you are first eligible to file for Medicare.

If you're not familiar with your Medicare options, you may feel overwhelmed because there's a lot of information to review.

Medicare consists of four different parts, one of which is automatic and the other three are optional.

Ask yourself these questions to get you thinking about Medicare:

- Have you applied for Part A Medicare?
- What are the best plans available in your area?
- Is your current insurance Medicare eligible?
- When is the normal sign-up period?
- Do you need to apply for or defer your Part B Medicare?
- Will the IRMA adjustment affect you?
